From The Editor

C. Christopher L. Foster
•Co-Head Editor•

Jason J. Worry
•Co-Head Editor•

Four years ago, Jason Worry and I were recruited as the editors for the yearbook, and looking back, I think I was feed some mis-information. I remember being told that all a yearbook editor had to do was to draw boxes on a page, draw the same boxes on photos, and possibly read the text that was to go in the yearbook. Who ever told me that lied! Designing a yearbook is slightly more complicated, as I soon found out. For starters, you don't even get to start the yearbook until you know where everything is to go. This often confused me, as I was never quite sure what had to go in the yearbook.

Right from the start, I learned that the most common word when talking to a yearbook editor is "tomorrow". This is true for every student, graduate and yes even every teacher I have ever talked to. From this first lesson, I learned a valuable second lesson, the real meaning of "tomorrow", and I feel it is important to pass this lesson on to those who chose to follow (blindly) in my foot-steps, rather than force yet another generation of editors through a mindless training exercise. So straight from the Yearbook Editor's Dictionary, "tomorrow", when spoken to an editor means: if you (the editor) remind me (the un-named source) enough times between now and the time you package the pages, I might get around to writing something. And further, once you know (or assume) it is done, remind me (more than once) to actually give it to you.

Unfortunately, all other lessons must be learned first hand. But it is possible at this point to help those who can read between the lines find out where to look for help when it is desperately needed. Mr. Herder, Mrs. Scott, and Mrs. Collins are all worthy of praise for the work they put into the yearbook. From Mr. Herder's photos, to Mrs. Collins incredible ability to identify photos, to Mrs. Scott's unique ability to catch the spelling mistake even the spell checker missed, it is always nice to know that the Development Office is somewhere in the background, but always ready to come forward and help.

To next year's editors, I can only repeat what Josten's told Jay and I (and many other new editors) our first year. Josten's had one simple word for us all: "SUCKER". And now that you are the editor, be prepared to give up a lot of your free time (ie. it's July 18th right now, and I've slept 5 hours in the last 3 days). Once you know this, the best advice I can give you is: enjoy life, have a great time, and make sure the yearbook gets done in-between. Oh ya, and if you need anything from Mr. Smith, just wait for him to finish chewing your head off and then ask, you'll usually get it that way.

But at this point the question still remains: What is a yearbook? Well to me, the word yearbook is directly associated with more coffee, and no sleep. But the yearbook is really a collection of memories, and for those who've seen the Review Office Floor lately, a lot of memories don't make it in the book. To those people, I'm sorry, and to those who've been included, it is now your job to share these memories with your friends and family.

And now, with ABSOLUTly nothing left, I realize that my time as editor is over. To Mr. Treasure, thanks for the support, latitude, and patience you gave us; Mr. Smith thanks for by-passing the politics for us, and finally to Jay, thanks for being a great co.

Looking for more ABSOLUT

Next year: Dreaming the impossible dream, or rooming with Jay and studing Mechanical Engineering at Waterloo.

First and foremost I would like to thank the Review's co-editors, Chris Foster and Jason Worry for their efforts and determination in seeing this year's book through to completion. While we haven't always seen eye to eye on yearbook matters, I congratulate our editors on their innovation, vision and hard work. It is their book and in its pages one can witness the progress and transformation that are the results of the mastery of new technologies that have so changed, and will continue to change, the publishing industry. Our yearbook editors have taken the Review in a new direction and have broken a tremendous amount of new ground in layout/design through the use of desktop publishing equipment. I commend their dedication and commitment to this difficult and often, tiresome, task. At this point, I would like to thank the Ladies Guild for its continuing support through its purchase of the desktop equipment that has provided the opportunity for this important aspect of the School. In addition, my thanks go too, to Headmaster Mr. Bedard for his support and encouragement of the yearbook and staff.

A great deal of the life of the book is due to the efforts of student photographers Andrew Morton and Eric Lam. I am grateful for their consistent devotion to school photography. They both put in a lot of extra time to cover most of the sports and events that are depicted in our Review. Of course, I would be remiss in not acknowledging the debt our book owes to our 'professional' help - thanks to Mr. Whitehead, Mr. Carnegie, Mr. Jones, Mr. Shields,Mr. Foy, Mr. Herder, and especially- Mr. Lu Taskey and Mrs. Lorraine Wilkes.

To the countless masters and staff who gave their time and energies to help in many ways from writing articles to submitting pictures and statistics, again, my heartfelt thanks. Furthermore, special acknowledgement is due to Mrs. Marsh, Mrs. Osborne, Mrs. Moffat-Lynch, Mrs. Cross, Mrs. Collins, Mrs. Petri, Mrs. Williams, Mr. Worling and Mr. Herder. Thanks for coming through despite some of the demands we placed upon you.

Finally, thanks to Mr. Sweet, our Josten's yearbook rep and the team at Jostens. This has been a demanding book to see through to its publication and we are grateful for the guidance and advice that have gone into its publication. The quality and excellence of this book speaks for itself.

S.R. Treasure

S.R. Treasure

How to start describing how I feel at this time in under a thousand words is complicated. I could start by telling a joke...ok. So who came first the chicken or the egg? . Well that was definitely not how I feel at this moment. Currently, I have many different feelings: accomplishment, disappointment, and excitement; all of which I will attempt to describe.

When Chris and myself were handed the "Review" on a silver platter four years ago, we were both very scared of what the yearbook actually stood for and at the same time excited about having something to contribute to the school which will exist even after both of us leave. We both agreed that we wanted to modify the existing yearbook format so as to bring it up to date with society. Looking back over the past four years, I think that we can sit back, smile and nod in agreement that we have definitely accomplished our modernization aspiration.

However, as all good things must come to an end eventually, I am now writing the final chapters of my autobiography of the Review. Knowing that I will no longer have the St. Andrew's College yearbook in my life brings a feeling of disappointment. Having something that has been such a large influence in your life and suddenly have it removed completely brings with it such a feeling you would feel as the final credits are rolling across the screen of an exceptional film.

A special note should be including at this thing to next year's editor(s). Hopefully, you can continue to maintain the reputation that the Review carries with it throughout Canada. Just a simple reminder, yes the yearbook will be completed eventually...just keep at it...then you can party hard!

I would like to take this opportunity to clear up a few misconceptions of the Review and its staff:

- The yearbook is not produced by professional publishers in Winnipeg.
- Yes, the Review does have a budget!
- Two editors work better than one (24 hour coverage)
- The perks of being on the Review staff don't always out-weigh the adversities.
- The word sleep doesn't exist in an editor's dictionary, but has been replaced by sleep-deprivation.

On a final note, as the final margarita has been finished and Chris and myself are sitting on the beaches of Tahiti, I would like to thank Mr. Treasure for his guidance and support; Mr. Smith for his Thank-you notes; Mr. Herder for all the nifty photos; the Ladies Guild for the financial support; and Dube for just being Dube!

1994-95 Prefects

This year's Prefects enjoyed an extremely busy year. We started off the year with a SAC Fever Homecoming that was a tremendous success, and ended with a Mayfest that transformed St. Andrew's into an amusement park for a day. We also helped assemble a first class weight training and cardiovascular facility.

Thanks to all of those who helped us out along the way. You made the trip rewarding. A special thanks goes to Mr. Foy for his time and advice.

We all had a great year being the school's leaders, and our meetings were always interesting, to say the least. I think we set a new record for inventing new words and traditions. Good luck to next year's leaders and 94-95 Prefects. Make some P!

Debating

Taking part in this banner year for St Andrew's Debating has been a great honour. My role as President allowed me a unique privilege: I witnessed the evolution of the Debating Society. I watched with delight as Mr Arril, Jonathan Hood and Chris Stock harnessed the power of our Junior Squad. Here we had a most fascinating paradox: fifteen debaters almost too eager to get up and speak! Seeing them in action made the O. J. Simpson trial look like a Chapel reading. Our Seniors continued to sharpen their skills, debating up a storm in the process.

We had the opportunity to host several social debates at Saint Andrew's this year. They provided an opportunity to get to know teams from other schools, and gave interested debaters a chance to get their feet wet. The November Social brought BSS to the school, while January's Super Social involved Havergal and St Clement's. I'll never forget the final round in January's debate. When the numbers didn't add up, Mr Ray, Chris Foster and I formed an impromptu team and debated the Government side of "Be it resolved that beards are beautiful" against a team from Havergal. As I recall, it was the well-bearded Mr Ray who came forth with the finest arguments. My personal thanks go to Mr Ray, Mr Arril, and the Executive, and in particular Chris Foster, without whose help the socials would never have been so successful.

For several of the Seniors, the year included some most enjoyable traveling. Last November, Jason Worry, Jonathan Hood and I represented the school in Victoria at the International Invitational Public Speaking competition. We enjoyed the beauty of British Columbia, the hospitality of our billets, and the company of esteemed debaters from as far away as Cyprus and Bermuda.

For the uninitiated, a "Debating Trip" conjures up images of geeks who've been plucked from The Far Side, plopped on a bus, and are raring to argue. Nothing could be farther from the truth! Through my involvement with debating, I've had the opportunity to visit all parts of our country—from the shores of Nova Scotia to Vancouver Island. We've touched down in multicultural Montreal and near Winnipeg's "coldest corner in the country."

And the debating is only half the fun! Debaters are notorious for finding interesting ways to entertain themselves. With Jusin Lindquist's brilliant advice, and dependable partner Jonathan Hood, I somehow came out on top debating gun control at the Toronto Regionals. At the Provincials in Ottawa, the closing banquet was held at a sugar bush in neighbouring Quebec, complete with square dancing and maple syrup. The powers that be blessed me with a topic close to home—privacy on the Information Highway—and I won the award for best English debater. The following month, at the Nationals, we toured Cirque du Soleil's training facilities and ate lunch in Old Montreal. The Ontario team brought home all three language division trophies!

It's not only the things you do, but the people you meet, that make the trips so enjoyable. I always found it fascinating how you can argue viciously with someone one minute—and then chat away as if you've known them for years the next. I make a point of keeping in touch with people I've met all across the country.

It was my great honour to help assemble a team of debaters who would bring home the Headmaster's Cup from Toronto French School. Jonathan Hood, Jed Dadson, Chris Foster and I debated civility's decline in modern society. M. Scott Peck's "A World Waiting to be Born" was an invaluable resource, as was the collective brainstorming of the team and back-ups Jason Worry and Paul Etherington.

Debating often takes on slightly different forms. Dean Husseini's public speaking efforts were awarded with a second-place finish at the fiercely competitive Shakespeare on the Platform Competition hosted by the English Speaking Union. Adrian Nusaputra, Jonathan Hood and I were delegates to the Ontario Youth Parliament, which was spearheaded this year by a former SAC debating President, Robert Leckey. In the context of a Model Parliament, the event brought together informed high school and University students from across the country. I look forward to meeting up with Andreans at next year's OYP!

It was a pleasure to organize the barbecue and sleep-over at Mike Young's place that finished off this wonderful year. We had a marvelous turn-out of Seniors, and our activities ranged from a variation of Spot The Loony to roasting (no, make that torching) marshmallows over the fire. Much to our chagrin, the VCR broke down, and so the Monty Python videos went unwatched. Jason Hammond ably represented our Juniors there; his presence made it clear to me that hopes for the future are bright. A confident executive led by Jonathan Hood is already in place.

We've debated some great stuff this year. From arts funding, to civility's decline, to the effects of running naked across the quad. Quebec separatism, to Internet privacy, to the need for white picket fences. My thanks to all who participated, in particular Mr Ray and Mr Arril who allowed us to "make it so." I wish next year's debaters the best of luck, and look forward to hearing of future success from Andrean debating.

- Robert Burke, President

Clans

Every boy during his life at St. Andrew's College belongs to a clan; the clans are named after the colourful family tribes of ancient Scotland. During the year our clans compete in, among other things, the cross-country run and the intramural track and field meet.

There are three areas in which points can be gained toward the winning in the upper school of the Housser Trophy: academics, extracurricular activities exclusive of sports, and Andrean representative sports teams. Point totals are computed on a per capita basis so that the size of the clan has no bearing on the outcome. The final standings are announced on Prize Day and one clan has the honour of holding the Trophy for the ensuing year.

There are occasions during the year when we are reminded of the significance of the clans and houses in our lives, and we take the time to recognize those students who truly make a difference to life in our school. As Coordinator of the Clans it is my job to weigh the applications of deserving students, to enable as many as possible to receive their clan colours while making sure that equity is maintained.

Clan Colours second class are presented to students who have earned in excess of 150 points over their senior years. First class colours go to those who have exceeded 250 points and this time the bar is white and the inscription is sewn in red. They look particularly fine on the white first team sweater coat. Finally there is each year a very small and select company whose members earn their bar to first colours by achieving well in excess of 350 points. The feat is symbolized by the wearing of a white and red bar surrounded by gold brocade.

Public presentation of these award takes place on two occasions during the year, the first of these being St. Andrew's Day at the end of November. This year, our guest of honour was former student Stephen Suarez, a seven-year man at SAC who achieved many distinctions in his time with during the early 80's, including C.O. of the Corps., President of Debating, Prefect, gutty rugger player and like. His remarks to the assembled school about what stayed with him from his Andrean years were particularly apropos.

The other occasion when we play tribute to clan award winners comes near the end of the school year at a special assembly. Because of time conflicts, this year we celebrated our stars on Prize Day morning. The guest of honour was Edward Ballon, the longest sitting member of our Board of Governors, also a former student. A great athlete in his time, and CEO of premier Canadian companies such as Birks Jewelers, his remarks delivered at an assembly that also honoured our sports teams centred around the theme of competition. Once again his perceptions were right on target.

This year a gratifying number of students qualified to receive their clan colours. Our congratulations to each of them for distinguishing themselves personally, and for contributing to the betterment of their clan and school. This year with the likes of Paul Etherington, Geoff Cattrall, Jed Dadson and Robert Burke pilling up the points, a repeat win for Leslie Clan was inevitable.

Leslie was first in the senior cross-country run and second in the track and field meet. Top boarder clan was MacPherson. They blew everyone else away in the May meet with their fierce competition. In terms of participation on athletic teams, Ramsey was just a little ahead of Lesile, with Stewart ahead of the other boarder clans.

Buchanan/Memorial admirally continued to improve their academic performance as a house. Once again, Macpherson/Flavelle were particularly well-represented in the performing arts.

The MacPherson Shield is presented annually to the most spirited member of the school community. This year, without any hesitation the decision was made to recognize the very special contribution of Mrs. Patricia Ham, our Matron for the past 18 years. Without her and her cohort, Mrs. Denise Rulli, few of our dramatic productions would have been as effectively costumed.

The Robertson Laidlaw Trophy, presented annually to the boy who in the last two years of his career earns the greatest number of points for his clan, this year went in a dead heat to two illustrious Laidlaw-ites, Geoffrey Cattrall and Robert Burke.

My thanks to all who took part at any level and who contributed by their loyalty and good sportsmanship.

Even more noticable than in the upper school is the rivalry between the three boarder clans in Macdonald House --Bruce, Montrose and Wallace -- and the two dayboy clans in Laidlaw House, Douglas and Robertson. The Day Boy constituency is becoming larger each year and the final standings reveal the dominance of the Laidlaw boys, particularly on the academic front. But this doesn't mean they have a monopoly on sprit and participation -- far from it!

Particular credit goes to Mr. Michael Hanson, Housemaster of Macdonald House. With the help of the clan captains, house captains and of course Mr. Peter Carnegie, Mr Hanson has made the clan system a vital part of the residence experience. In this year's Trans-Shads tug-of-war, Mr Whitehead's forces were blown out of the water--or pulled into the water which is rather closer to the truth.

This year's winner of the Rupert J. Ray Trophy for the top clan in Macdonald House was a pleasant surprise, a "come from behind" victory by Montrose Clan, putting a stop to what was becoming an un-exciting string of triumphs by the boys of Bruce. Yamato Yoshioka deserves particular credit.

The Hockin Trophy is competed for by the five clans in the Lower School, and this year it was again won by Robertson Clan by a slim margin over Douglas. Congratulations to Mr David Whitehead and the young men of Laidlaw, and to all those who brightened our lives with their efforts.

R. J. Ray, Coordinator

Weight Room

SAC is grateful for the ongoing commitment and dedication of the members of the Ladies Guild. The school now enjoys the advantage of a new and improved exercise room - complete with the best available equipment on the market today.

Equipment consists of a free-weight area, complete with a special floor (to absorb the landing of the wieghts) and 10 stations for toning every group of muscles in the body as well as a universal gym (16 different exercises), stair-climbers, stationary bicycles and a treadmill.

This much in demand facility is a tremendous enhancement to coaches' training programs and is enjoyed by students and faculty alike. Naturally, it provides another opportunity for students to develop physically as well as providing them with the opportunity to learn new skills when supervising and contributing their expertise to new users.

Help us Help The Children

3 Easy Steps To Making A Difference

Many thanks must be given to SAC students and their families for their enthusiasm and participation in the "Help Us Help the Children" Donation drive. Many fine articles of clothing, educational materials and sporting goods were collected during our month long drive.

I have been told my the "HUHC" organization that these supplies have already been delivered to the children of the Ukraine.

It is good that the St. Andrew's Community was able to help those most affected by the environmental disaster at Chernobyl - the children. We were able to make a difference in the lives of these children who have very little. Once again, our heartfelt thanks.

Homecoming

Who can forget the homecoming of '94. With everything ranging from the traditional sports and dance, to the more inventive ideas like the SAC mobile. It was truly a day to remember.

On the playing fields and in the gym SAC had a great day, trouncing on the little blue guys (think smurf) from UCC and Royal St. Georges. If you were interested in watching a victory live, you simply had to find a sport which you liked and watch the Saints annihilate the competition.

If on the other hand it was food and entertainment you were interested in, there was no shortage here either. The barbecue was going strong around lunch time with plenty of food for both the spectators, and the all-mighty Saints.

When the day was officially over, if you could find a shower, some clean cloths and a little cologne, you were invited to the dance. Here the faces sparkled (in some cases literally) as SAC held the dance of the disco era. Of course 70's clothing, or at least a t-shirt with grover on it was required in order to have a good time. The ruffians of the playing fields became perfect gentlemen when it came to entertaining the guests that the prefects had so kindly invited. And we must give credit to the prefects, because they were able to invite twice as many guests as there were tickets (hmmm....). When the night was finally over (this would be when the chaperones turned the lights on), the guests had been escorted to their buses, and the dance floor was clean, SAC retired to enjoy a good long nap (or maybe a coffee at the local donut shop).

X-Country Run

Congo Line...

There has never really been a yearbook write-up detailing the events that happen at the Cross Country Run. Well, this year is special. After completing a gruelling three periods of classes, the entire school – injured people excepted – gathered on the lower fields near the two bridges. With the sound of the starter's gun, the two different junior and senior groups began running. I can still hear the huffing, puffing, complaining: "How much further? I think I'm going to die" sounds as the race progressed.

The eventual winner of the junior group was the ????, while Lindsey Pucholt was crowned the Senior Cross Country Run Winner. Refreshments were available for the taking, but not for the people who walked the whole race. Much thanks must go to the emergency staff from St. Mike's Hospital for cleaning-up all of the fatalities off of the running track so the cripples would not get trampled any more than they had already been.

However, there is some bad news. The school feels as though the Cross Country Run is not challenging enough. Therefore, next year the Cross Country Run will consist of a total of three laps of this year's race. Good luck next year! (Just Kidding: It's really only going to be two laps)

The tournament officially began with a rough start. SAC's first game was against UCC, and well there are no words for the level of competition. Insane is the only thing that comes to mind. With good reason though, the game finished with a tie, but this was not good enough, after a couple of extra rounds of overtime, the teams started pulling members from the ice until a goal was finally scored (two men aside).

Fortunately this did not set the trend for the games to come. The big game Friday night was an easy win, with Kings Edgehill losing both the game and their pride to an arena packed with SAC enthusiasts. The sounds of SAC cheers, including Amazing Grace and Warm Up The Bus, echoed through the hearts of all those watching the game, and possibly even all those living within a five mile radius.

SAC vs. Kings Edge-Hill was not the only great hockey of the night. The entertaining half-time game between the islanders and the west Indians was almost more than anyone could handle in a given night. Special thanks goes the Jason Inniss for organizing the game, and teaching everyone to skate (Hmmm...).

Ski-Day

Does cold, wet slush should comforting? I don't think so, but with the sun shining down on the skier's at Blue Mountain the not-so-dry-feeling was greatly overlooked. It was very difficult keeping up with the skier's as they buzzed down the hill or across an open field on cross country skies. This year's Ski Day was a "little tardy" due to adverse weather conditions and other interesting complications, but that didn't prevent everybody from enjoying the day when it eventually occurred. A special thanks should go out to the organizers of Ski Day especially Mr. Walden, who's persistance payed off enormous. Another special thanks must go to the lift operators who ensured that the students sat down at the right time and not on a fence post and the ski patrollers for making sure that the appropriate leg splints were applied when needed. I'd like at this time to say a few words to Debbie who I meet on the bunnie slope. I will never forget the moment that we shared together when we learned how to stand up on those slabs of wood with wax bottoms. Anyways, I must be running now so that I can practice my triple-flipping-somersaulting-upside-down poodle jump. Chow!

SYNERGY

This year was the inaugural year for SYNERGY '95, SAC's first ever multicultural festival. This very successful venture was presented on the night of May 17th 1995 by St. Andrew's College and the Branksome Hall School and was the culmination of months of planning, rehearsals, and a lot of hope and luck.

The night began with a wonderful multicultural dinner prepared by the Dining Hall, showcasing many dishes from around the world. The presentation segment of the night, MC'd by Jay Shah and Branksome's head prefect, Robin Thompson, featured many talented students from both schools performing dances, songs, and skits from countries such as Hong Kong, Mexico, England, India, and Japan. The Ladies Guild, fresh off their very successful "Red and White Goes International" fundraising dinner/dance, was kind enough to supply many of the decorations for the Dining Hall and the Ketchum Auditorium; many students also brought flags from their native countries to enable us to fully represent the wide variety of cultural backgrounds present at the College.

Representing the SYNERGY planning committeee I would like to thank: the SAC race relations committee, headed by Mr. Aubrey Foy and Mrs. Doreeen Hiltz, for their immense support and hard work throughout the year to help make this festival become a reality; the Branksome planning committee headed by Miss Jennifer Walcott and students Bhavna Chandiramani and Sarah Wilson for their time and considerable effort in helping to organize this event and to garner support for SYNERGY at their school: Mrs. Dolly Moffat-Lynch for helping to make the programs and for ensuring that communications between SAC and Branksome remained steady; the Dining Hall staff: Anne Burton, Mike Hillick and Luigi for the hard work that went into preparing the dinner; Mr. Herder and the Ladies Guild for the deorations for the festival; Chris Foster, and Jason Worry for putting in time to make the logo and programs; the sound/light crew, comprising of Jeffrey Lewis, Adrian Ennis, Drew Ripley, Chris Foster, and many others for donating their talents and effort and for competently accomplishing a monumental task.

Finally, I would like to thank Mr. Bedard for his support of SYNERGY; without his blessing the festival would have never left the planning stages at all.

To all the students who participated in the festival and to those whose performances brought it to life, and especially to Jay Shah, many thanks.

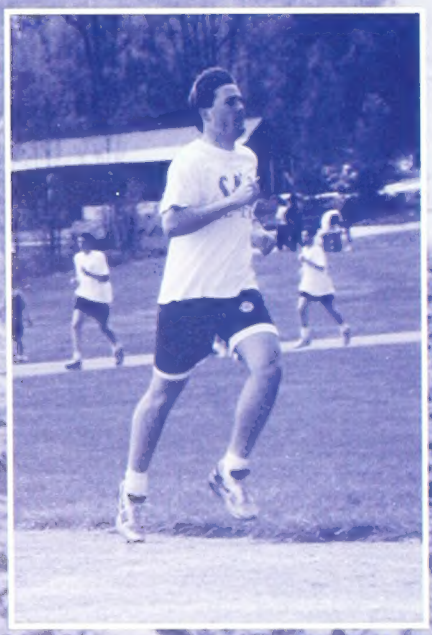
SAC



Let me try and create an picture in your mind. It's an image of happiness, determination and sweat. Even though everybody is friends, when they get together in one mass they fight for the honour of having a red ribbon indicating the highest standing available. Some people have natural born talent and stamina. While others have been training for many months. Regardless, all competitors had a fair and equal chance of succeeding.

Perhaps this mental picture isn't complete, but then again it's very difficult to misinterpret the phrase "Track and Field Day". It obviously represents a day of fun, excitement, and comradeship. The short distance sprints were again undetermined until the final few steps of the final race and the long distance races were well participated in.

Hopefully, next year the support that was seen at this year's track and field day will increased so that the day can be enjoyed more. As for house clan competition, Mr. Ray calculated all of the results on his BS-4000 machine and found that the junior clan which had accumulated the greatest number of points calculated from the results of the competitors in the clan was Robertson. As for the senior clan winner, there was an obvious trend for Flavelle house early in the day which continued resulting in the MacPherson clan coming out on top, with New House Clan and Ramsey House Clan coming second and third respectively.

The success of this day is a direct indication of the amount of work and time sacrificed in order to organize the day. Much thanx should be given to all members of the faculty which participated in the day by providing their services.

Plans for Mayfest started back in September, 1994 and right away it was known that this year would be stupendous compared to years passed. There was talk of flying in Aerosmith for a private concert and taking over the Woodbine Race Track to run the teacher races where the horses in a normal race have been substituted by the masters of St. Andrew's College. However, when it came down to crunch time in late April, the Prefects and a few select individuals organized Mayfest to transform St. Andrew's College into a circus including sumo wrestling, velcro-throw-yourself-against-a-wall-and-stick events, and music being provided by DJ Pilieci.

The day climaxed at many different times with a battle of the bands competition held mid-afternoon and a Pyro-Laserlite dance in the evening. After everything was said and done, a feeling of pleasure and satisfaction about the success of the entire day was felt. At completion, the organizers were allowed time to get some rest and relaxation.

To top the entire evening off, there were go-go dancers invited to the dance. Let's just say that the men of St. Andrew's College really enjoyed the scenery. However, the go-go dancers would like their ring back at a later date (Paul).

Hopefully, next year the organizers can do even better and maintain the school spirit by keeping Mayfest alive because what's St. Andrew's College without a Mayfest?

St. Andrew's Night

When the word 'yummy' is mentioned, do you think of fish eggs or Haggis? Perhaps but probably not! By attending St. Andrew's Night at least you'll have a story to tell your children when you get married. You know how it would go – "Son, you think broccoli is hard to choke down? Let me tell you a story. When I was young I had to track through twelve feet of snow just to make it to school so that I could enjoy "HAGGIS" at St. Andrew's Night. However, I look back upon those times and think of the amount of fun I had laughing at the funny faces the new boys made when they tried Haggis for the very first time."

Mr. Ray recited the opening prose to set the theme for the evening and following with tradition, we were blessed with a guest speaker – Conrad Bona – and an old boy playing the pipes. The clan award winners and the "Andrew" awards were announced concluding the evening. Just a simple question: Do you receive more than a silver dollar at St. Andrew's Night if you legally change your name to 'St. Andrew's College'?

Cadet Formal

After a day of sunshine beaming down on top of another extremely successful Cadet Inspection, the boys of St. Andrew's College moved the festivities down to the Sheraton Centre in Markham. This year, the Perowne family opened their house to all of the parents, sons and dates attending the formal. Luckily, this year the buses which were rented to transport the formal goers to the formal did not get stuck. On a special note, we at least know that one couple had a good time, (i.e. Charlie and Kirsten).

With good dance music provided by Mandell Entertainment, the St. Andrew's College Scots-For-A-Day partied into the early hours of the morning climaxing with the live band performance at the Perowne's after the formal. The students of St. Andrew's College would like to thank Mr. and Mrs. Perowne for their generosity on this evening ensuring that there will be many more events like this years again in the future.

Costa Rica

Costa Rica was a year much like any other year. It was hot; it was humid; and we sweated a lot. The students who attended this year's trip were exposed to new and interesting creatures, animals, and cultural experiences. It should be noted that the scare that Mr. Whitehead was coming down with some contagist disease ended up to be no big problem and was cured by a few tablespoons of the pink stuff. (a.k.a. Pepto Bismo). People are lining up on the waiting list for next year's trip already so get your tickets now while the chance is still available.

Quebec City

The Quebec City trip...need we say more. Let's just say that it was educational for all participants including any S.A.C. grads who just happen to be walking around the Howard Johnson's in Montreal - they worked on their hotel managing skills. From the pictures, it would appear our spirits were continuing flowing. However, we are not able to publicize 95% of the pictures due to us expressing our appreciation for getting back to nature the Quebecois way. Mr. Walden and Mr. Kinney were very understanding in all aspects and made the trip complete - Thanx. We had the opportunity to brush our teeth, wash our face, and shave while keeping up with the daily news in the chronical at 7:00 am in the Montreal McDonald's. We encourage all other students to take part in this trip as it is an unforgettable experience.

Haliburton Forest

Once again, the grade 12 environmental science class ventured for a five day outdoor field study at the Haliburton Forest Outdoor Education Centre. This year the trip was filled with 28 enthusiastic students, who despite the rain and cold, did an excellent job in learning about the 'outdoor' environment. The trip this year also had an added feature - along with the usual biking, rafting, hiking, bush walking, navigation and survival skills - this year HF was proud to introduce a live wold pack which we observed. This fascinated our students and made the trip just a little more memorable. Congratulations to all who participated - it was a fun trip. Special thanks to Mr. Carnegie.

WHITE WATER RAFTING OTTAWA RIVER

On the Victoria weekend, many of our "out of country" students got to experience the thrill of White Water Rafting on the Ottawa River. Organized by Mr. Bob Perrier, we set off with many of us having never done this type of thing before.

It turned out to be a beautiful weekend with lots of sunshine, beach volleyball, canoeing and swimming. We rafted for two days, decked out in wetsuits (thankyou, Bob!), helmets and lifejackets. It was soon realized how important this equipment was when one of our Jamaican counterparts involuntarily tested the warmth of the water. Needless to say, he soon discovered it wasn't as compelling as the beaches back home and proceeded in smart fashion to remove himself from the icy river. Well done, Randy!!

I would like to thank Mr. Perrier for a superbly organized trip and the students who made the most of a great Canadian weekend.

Cheers, P.W. Carnegie

It was almost the best of seasons. However, it was the might have been, could have been, and should have been the year for the league title. By some quirk of scheduling we were asked to play five away matches and only two at home. The playoff situation was equally frustrating as we lost by a single penalty shot, after double overtime, in the semi-finals. The record is excellent but the disappointment is that I thought we had the team with the most overall talent and potential in the league.

Thirteen players will be leaving this year and I would like to thank all of them for their dedication and service to the team over the past seasons. In Austin Page, De la Quintana, Jan Lutzen, Jed Dadson and captain Paul Etherington we have had players who were outstanding and would have made the first team in any year.

Next season will be a rebuilding one but with the talents of our tier2 and junior teams available we will be competitive and it will not be too long before we are up at the top again.

On behalf of Ed McNally, the architect of our season, and myself I would like to express our thanks to the team for their determination and efforts this past season and our best wishes for the future to those who will be leaving us.

Our thanks also to Mr. Carnegie who assisted with the tournament and the trip to Stanstead and to Mr. Dawson whose statistics and support at games was greatly appreciated.

Once again the TIER II Soccer Team proved to be formidable opponents in a competitive league of twelve teams. Having a large contingent of players (23) afforded us a good deal of flexibility in who and how we played. The statistics below reflect the commitment and dedication of all those involved with this team, including those staff and students who supported us and share in our success.

It was satisfying to have a large number of competent strikers - Chris (Abe) Abraham, Ahmed (Max) Dhaheri, Chris (Dona) Donnelly, Lawrence (Larry) Shadeed, Hugo Wong and Robert Lowes. Maxi (MVP) and Wong demonstrated great versatility by occasionally playing defensive positions. This positional flexibility was best demonstrated in the quarter-final victory over Ridley College who had beat us convincingly, 7-0 and 5-0, in two previous league games !

The strength in mid-field came from veteran players Martin (Mustard) Landry and David Reale who played consistently with 100% passion and effort. Center field, in my mind the most important position, was handled superbly by team captain Mike Tzembelicos. Mike did all the right things in making this team work effectively. I offer my sincere thanks for his efforts! Our MIP, MUF (Most Unpaid Fines) Manuel Ziltener, surprised many of us by his skill, speed, and intelligence for the game. By season end he had earned the respect of all his team mates and those who had seen him play.

The full backs certainly made every game exciting to watch! A mixed bag of size, speed, and skills frustrated many opposition offenses. Season starters Rob Christie and Sean Daniel were well supported by Helmut Kellen and late season suprise sweeper - Vic (Road Runner) Richards. Andre (The Giant) Schwilden's presence was icing on the cake - nothing got by Andre - NOTHING !

Two goalies time-shared this season's games. Each with their own style, both enthusiastic and supportive of each other. Jeff (Go to go Flying) Lewis, a rookie soccer goaltender, was very effective - despite the size of the net and lack of equipment ! In the final tournament, a first round semi-final loss to league winners Albert College put us up against the venerable CDS and a fight for third place. Tied after playing through regular time and two overtime periods it came down to penalty shots. Superb shooting by Max, Abe,and Andre and some spectacular saves by Ed Mercer secured a final victory and respectable third place finish for the season.

First Football

The 1994 Saints' first football season began with a professionally run training camp, lead by incoming Head coach Cameron and his able staff. We had no shortage of guest experts in to help us throughout the year (including former great Canadian College and professional footballers like Terry Evanshen, Larry Smith, Ron Perowne, Sylvio Madel, and Steve Barlow), and to these men we extend our appreciation for their time and effort.

We rode the crest of a strong training camp into game one against Ridley where we scored an impressive 14 - 0 victory. From this point onward our fortunes took a turn for the worse; we proceeded to lose both games and players as the season progressed. Injuries along the way cost us important team members such as E. Ham, K. Lippe, and S. Mantrop, placing an even greater burden on the shoulders of stalwart veterans M. Wilson and A. Cheung. A heartbreaking 7 - 0 loss to UCC at the halfway point of the season took its toll on our confidence level, but had little effect on our drive and determination. Two hard fought losses to TCS and Ridley brought us to the semi-finals, where we met the team heavily favoured to win the division: TCS.

We reached the pinnacle of our season in the first quarter of this important game, when we outplayed, outscored, and generally frustrated our worthy adversary. Outstanding play by J. Inniss, R. Somerville, and the rest of the offensive line gave season MVP C. Perowne the room, and season MIP W. Smith the time, to mount our most dangerous offensive thrusts of the season. Repeated defensive stands were anchored by K. Hurley, M. Thorne, M. Foy and the rest of the defensive corps. In the end T.C.S. adjusted enough to earn the victory, but we left the field that day with an enormous sense of pride in our valiant effort.

With an overwhelming majority of the team returning for the 1995 season, we look forward to improving upon our 1 - 6 record this year. We extend a special thank you to coach Breckles for volunteering his expertise, his cordless portable megaphone during practice and games, and expecially his time away from his family over the course of the season. Until next year men, remember to run, lift and cycle over the summer months (it will make life a lot easier next fall.)

/SAA Volleyball not only has gained popularity but the level of play has also improved tremendously. This year our Senior Tier I team rose to that level, finishing fourth in league play. This earned us a berth in the quarter finals where the team handily defeated Royal St. George three games to none. In the semi-finals we came up against, and were defeated by, a very strong first place TCS team.

Being made up of mostly young players we look forward to next year when most of the boys will be in their senior year. We say goodbye to senior player and MVP Jeff Lavers, thanking him for his contribution to our team and program. Good luck Jeff.

Cross Country Running

The Cross Country team was led by outstanding individuals in every category; Nick Cafaro U14, Daniel Wells - midget, Jeff Messina-junior, and Lindsay Pucholt in the senior division.

Overall, the Midget team proved to be the most competitive, reaching very high finish positions even in the largest and most competitive meets. Besides this there have been a number of encouraging signs that indicate future years look quite promising.

Our numbers continue to increase and our teams continue to demonstrate more depth and all but one of our most competitive runners from this year's team are expected to return. Though a slow process, the coaches feel Cross Country at SAC is headed in the right direction. We have a solid nucleus of young members on the team who have considerable potential and who share the desire to be amongst the front runners. Please note our Home meet next season coincides with the SAC "Homecoming" September 1995.

Nordic Skiing — Captain: Jan Lutzen & Andrew Michael

Over the past two years, the Nordic Ski team has enjoyed tremendous sucess. Although this success could not have been realized without the excellent leadership of coach, Mr. Gaertner and captains, Andrew Michael and Jan Lutzen alike. However the most credit must go to the athletes themselves, for their hard work and determination. Cross country skiing is a very time consuming and physically demanding sport, requiring the sacrifice of nearly every Wednessday and Saturday, all day long for preactice and fitness.

The 94 ski season included such results as the 94 ISAA Jr. Championships, DYSSAA Jr. and Sr. Championships and OFSAA Jr. Silver medallists. In addition, this year we captured both the Jr. and Sr. ISAA Championships and both the Jr. and Sr. YRSSAA with a sweep of the top four posititions in the senior category, sending both teams to the OFSAA in style. Unfortunatly we had a disappoining climax to the season as our team was ravaged by the flu.

Throughout both years we shared great memories from the weekend trips to Haliburton, Hunstville and Algonquin Park and daily trips for races and training. Hence, we eagerly look forward to another successful season next year.

Special mention must go to one our our key team members and Captains, Jan Lutzen, who is leaving us this year.

I.S.A.A. Champions

In November, the 1994-95 edition of St. Andrew's First Basketball team travelled to Montreal to participate in the Lower Canada College Tournament. The Saints returned to Aurora with gold medals. All the players were happy, but they had a bigger goal in mind.

At their first practice after the Christmas break, the players put up a homemade poster in the gym. It was a pledge, signed by everyone, to win the CISAA championship. There were many high and low points since then, but eventually the whole season came down to one game for all the marbles. The championship game was at St. Andrew's on Friday March 3, with Upper Canada College Blues the visitors.

Since the boarders were able to watch the game instead of having study hall, there was a captive audience. There were about three hundred spectators, counting the boys, teachers, family and friends. There wasn't much to be excited about in the first quarter, with U.C.C. ahead 9-7, as both teams played well defensively. The Saints exploded in the second quarter to take a 30-26 half-time lead. The Blues rebounded in the third period to go ahead 48-43. Things looked bleak in the final frame as first Robert Sands, and then Derek Bulas, fouled out. But then the sixth man became a factor, as the S.A.C. supporters belted out a rousing version on When the Saints Go Marching In. This seemed to give new life to the Saints and they stormed back.

With nineteen seconds remaining in the contest, and Upper Canada clinging to a 60-59 lead, Saints' Coach David Josselyn called his last time-out to prepare his troops for the final battle. As planned, the Saints worked the ball around and it ended up on the far side in the hands of Jeff Lavers, who calmly took an uncontested shot and sank a three-pointer to give S.A.C. a 62-60 advantage. There were six seconds and Upper Canada called time. Whatever the U.C.C. strategy was, we'll never know. The Blues were unable to even get a shot away due to the S.A.C. blanket defence, inspired by the noise of the fans, all of whom were standing and cheering wildly.

As the final buzzer sounded, the crowed erupted and surrounded the Saints bench. Lavers was swept off his feet and raised to the shoulders of the happy throng. The gym was a mass of humanity. As the players cut down the mesh strand by strand, S.A.C.'s Tim Jackson picked up the microphone and emotionally thanked the Coach, teachers and students for their support. The poster was taken down and proudly held high by the triumphant players.

The Saints did 'go marching in', to claim a 62-60 victory. Lavers and Sands were the game's top point-getters with 18 apiece, splitting 8 three-point baskets between them. Other scorers for the Saints were: Bulas with 12, Sean Cozier, 8, and Jackson with six.

According to Coach Josselyn, "It was the most exciting game I have ever been involved in. Both teams played their hearts out." Then he added, "I am especially pleased for our Captain, Derek Bulas, who has been on the team for three years. He was totally unselfish and sacrificed a great deal to help us become winners." Then the Coach echoed the thoughts of many of those in attendance when he said, "Winning the way we did in front of the home crowd will be a memory that the whole team can cherish for a long time".

St. Andrew's fielded, arguably, one of the most talented tier II teams in years. Our own early bird tournament showed the league as a whole had improved greatly and it was felt that this team would be very competitive. Early wins, ties and close losses boded well for the team. Unfortunately while the team had a dedicated core of players willing to practice hard to improve their skills, others were not as committed. Down the home stretch while other teams improved we stagnated. In retrospect a different approach taken by the coaches and some players may have resulted in a different final outcome. Hopefully we will learn from our errors.

The season was not a complete loss as we improved our standing over the previous inaugural league season by finishing in fifth place, an improvement of one. Perhaps next year will see us go on to the quarter finals.

First hockey 94-95 was a year of unprecedented challenges for all those involved. The loss, to graduation, of the core of the previous team, created an atmosphere of anticipation - could we be as competitive? - who would step up and fill the vacuum of talent and leadership?

It took a full season to answer these questions. Here are some of the salient moments.

MacPherson Tournament (semi - final): Jeff Lewis is outstanding and the team plays near perfect defence before losing 2 - 1 in 3 periods of overtime to Shattuck St. Mary's of Minnesota.

Vs. Markham (York Region Final): After losing 7 - 2 in the opening game, the team pulls together under Charlie Perowne's leadership and reverses the trend. We win game 2 convincingly and return to Aurora. Game 3 is one for the archives. Despite playing the best hockey of the series we find ourselves down 3 - 0 with 7 minutes to play. This was the defining moment of our season. In stunning fashion, the two Steves - Gainey and Mantrop, lead the comeback and we win the championship 4 - 3 in overtime.

OFSAA Qualifier: Our hopes and dreams are dashed by Brother Andre. Our power play sputters as we lose 2 -1 in overtime despite playing a gritty, courageous game.

Many thanks to all the players for their time and effort. Best of luck to our graduating cast Kai Brown, Mike Weber, Jeff Lewis and our captain Charlie Perowne. Special thanks to our supporting staff Mr. Dawson, Mrs. Perrier and Jun Park.

When the season began, we were convinced that, if we worked hard, the ISAA championships were ours this year. So training began, and did it ever!

By about mid-February, our hopes were high. By this point we knew what ALMOST all the competition had going for it, and it wasn't much. Aside from a few strong swimmers from our competitiors, it looked like we had the bulk of the events covered. Infact it was not until UCC submitted their final team list and events line-up that we had any doubts. In the end it came down to SAC vs. UCC for the championship. SAC swam hard, but it wasn't quite enough, and in the end we were defeated.

In our defence, congratulations should go to Carl Zank, David Dunlap and many more, who, during the last few weeks of the season, came out in support of the team while battling an incredible flu.

Thanks should go to our coach, who was both there for the team, and organized the finals. Thanks must also go to the swimmers who all came out and gave it their best - guys with only to grads this year, next year's team should be stronger than ever, and the ISAA is yours. - Chris Foster

First Rugby — Captain: Paul Etherington

The "Club" approach adopted this year at the Senior level allowed for more game experience for individuals, and more meaningful practices that will yield results in years to come. Most of the players accepted the new system - we lost some who were less committed - and the "swing" members of the firsts (the reserves) Ed Ham, Mark Newton, Andrew Cheung, and Carl Zank benefited from extra game time.

The 1st XV itself had an experienced set of backs, with Greg Gillam scoring tries against UCC, TCS and Appleby, Austin Page (MVP) and Paul Etherington supplying leadership, and Christian Hirt, Jan Lutzen and Rob Luxemburger all improving in new positions. The forwards, very well lead by Jason Inniss, Jason Worry and Charlie Perowne, developed as a unit with strength and speed. Good luck to all these graduates.

With five returning in the pack, MIP Simon Williams at scrum half, and a planned tour in March Break 1996 promises to be more successful.

The record of eight games - five won, two lost and one tied sounds good, and was certainly an improvement on last year. Early season victories against Leaside, Lawrence Park and Stanstead in Quebec gave us confidence before we met Bishop's and their Australian exchange full back who controlled a game we otherwise dominated.

We came short of the CISAA championships by just six points in a "must win" game at TCS. It was all the more disappointing since we missed clear chances to score. We rebounded well to win at Ridley and Appleby, restoring respectability and pride.

Our second team played in the new Tier Two Rugby League this season. We were very competitive and played over ten games this spring. All our players benefited extremely by the new club approach which gave us the opportunity to practice everyday with the First team. All our players improved consistently and a few were able to play reserve on the First team.

I would like to thank the grade 13's who played for us this season: Andrew Cheung, Helmut Kellen, Brad Cowan, Lawrence Sim, Ed Ham - we would like to thank Mr John MacMillan, an old boy, for his hard work. All of the players benefited from his knowledge of the game and his great coaching this season.

There are a number of players that deserve honourable mention for their improvement this season: Brad Livingston, Brad Cowan, and Will Diep. But the MIP winner was Stuart Mottley. It was difficult to pick only one MVP because of the number of valuable players on the team, but the winner for 1995 was Jeff Slightham.

Track & Field

Wow! It's hard to believe that SAC track has just captured it's sixth straight CISAA championship. I can't tell you how proud we, the coaches, are of this team.

Not only did SAC win by 282 points to their nearest competitor, but they did it with class and enthusiasm.

Once again the midget and junior divisions captured their respective age 'class' plaques. These divisions were a class above the rest and were blessed by many gifted athletes such as gold medalist Mike Palmer, Nick Cafaro, Daniel Wells, Jeff Mesina, Shawn Bruce, Keith Dadson, Victor Richards, Kevin Aarts and the list can go on!

Congratulations to all SAC track and field athletes that represented SAC at the CISAA championships this past May 22 at McMaster University. You represented your school with class abd brought home another championship. I hope you will return next year so that we can defend our title. Thank you - and remember you were a part of the SAC track history.

First Tennis

The first tennis team had a very successful season. All team members practised and played with lots of heart and improvement was obvious. By the time the final tournament came around, teams who had proved challenging earlier were being beaten decisively, and teams who had beaten SAC decisively were finding themselves challenged. SAC eventually lost to UCC in the semi-finals of the tournament but hopes are high for all returning members of next year's team. Team MVP was Neil Ritchie. Team MIP was Andrew Ipekian. Special thanks and best of luck to Andre Schwilden who played his final season for SAC.

Second Tennis

The members of the second tennis team were a keen bunch who showed determination and patience despite the lack of match play available to them. The team went into the final tournament inexperienced but hungry and came out with a third place finish. Congratulations to all those who put in a great effort and to this year's MVP and MIP Chris Ward and Kevin Kim.

First Swimming

Starting the cricket season - short as it is - without the use of our outside cricket pitches was a daunting prospect for coaches and players alike. This however, was not an extraordinary occurrence considering the kind of spring we have in this part of Canada, and the unreliable temperament of our lower fields. We were not at all deep with experienced Canadian players of the game; some who have learned it here have reverted to other activities more in keeping with their North American learning. Need one be more specific? Oh well... the siren song of tennis and track, to say nothing of rugger and badminton seduced some good lads, and we missed their contribution keenly. West Indians, who made up the greater part of our squad, being the flexible, laid-back kind of animals that they are, put this adversity to the back of their minds, and faced what was to be a chancy season at best with good humour.

What splendid fellows they are and in the absence of the inimitable "Robo" [that's Mr. Peter Robinson to the unfortunate uninitiated] who has been rusticating in Lower Canada for a season on leave of absence, it fell to me - a happy guest from the land of Oz who has chosen to make SAC his home - to take over from the great Robo and attempt to bond this happy band of brothers into a serviceable team on the pitch - when we eventually got onto it, that is! What a pleasure it was coaching the group who became the First Eleven; they were eager to learn and cooperate; they embodied much that is unique and special about the kind of athlete who gravitates to the magnificent game of cricket, and considering the obstacles to be overcome, gave a reasonably good account of themselves in some of their games. Our congratulations to Trinity who probably fielded the best team that we met. We would be happier to look back on the other games if we could claim that the games were close. Too often they we not, but that doesn't seem to be the sole bottom line in the case of cricket. It is, in the best sense of the term, a character building experience!

A special thank-you must go to team captain, Richard Lewis, who is now developing into a very fine cricketer. Credit also to William "Bilse" Mercer who epitomised promptness, to Richard "Biggs" Mussaib-Ali whose humour I found invaluable, to Bren Christie for his overall hard work and determination and to Sean Cozier for his strong desire to win. Most Improved Player was David Roker. Most Valuable was Richard Lewis. What more can one say?

Bennett King, one of the great coaches at a competitive level, who led Queensland, Australia to the '95 Sheffield Cup Championship, said to me on one occasion:

"People who have never played cricket at a competitive level and call the game un-athletic and boring are simply ignorant. For any sport, one must have played the game to justify such criticisms."

Thank you all for a great, albeit short, and spirited season!

First Badminton

Another fine year of badminton at St. Andrew's College. The programme is healthy and growing—especially at the under 14 level. I was sure that M. Grenier was handing out free Nintendo games when I saw the number of young players trying out for his team. As for the First Team, we had many returning players and a few new players to round out our side. In particular we acquired a player who was undefeated on the season and clearly showed himself to be the best singles player in the ISAA (although we cannot officially claim this because the tournament was based solely on team play). What is more surprising is that this player, Samuel Lam, is in Grade 7. I'm not sure if this is a SAC record, but Sammy is the first player since I've been at SAC to play on any First team while in Grade 7. We look forward to many years of growth for the entire team with Sammy's fine example to lead the way. Certainly he became something of a cult figure for his Mac House friends who attended matches and cheered on his skillful play against opponents often twice his size. We would love to see more students out for matches—because aside from Sammy we have some very talented players who deserve support.

Moving on from our team this year to university are Scott Yu (2nd double), Andrew Vong (3rd single), Joyo Njaman (1st double), Alan Chun (1st double), and Tommy Kong (2nd double). I strongly encourage these players to maintain a fitness program at university and to maintain a healthy attitude toward personal fitness throughout their lives.

I'm really looking forward to next season and I want to sincerely thank the entire team for their effort.

We finished second in the CISAA finals at Blue Springs by one stroke. Our ability to play at St. Andrew's Valley, known for its quality and difficulty certainly is an assets allowing our golf program to once more be a success. Darrin McNair was our MVP and after playing with us for 5 years we'll surely miss him. We wish him the best in a hopeful golf career.

The time has come. You never realize how fast life moves until you see yourself as a product of accumulated time. I'd like to thank all the masters at SAC for shaping my character during these important stages of development. Special thanks to Mr. Giel who introduced me to the world of stocks and bonds and Mr. Smith who always managed to keep me in line. I'd also like to thank those who are close to me---everyone from Dr. Nan, to little Sam, to Biggs Senior who kept me strong and made me accept everyday as a new challenge, to Biggs Junior who's drive has always been encouraging to me. My friends, the Punny Buoys---Mark, Chris, Mike, Jay and Hellmuut. I'll miss the loud, obnoxious sessions on the upper level of the library (especially the "Nasty Sam" jokes). To my partner in crime Corby---may our heavy-duty workout sessions and weekend excursions to Palazzo and Tabboo prosper over the years to come. To Nicole, thanks for pointing out the positive when everything seemed rotten. To Jed, I appreciate everything you were always willing to do for me---especially when it came time to writing all those essays. Anytime you need some financial advice, it's yours pal. Finally to Chris. We went through a lot together between grade 9 and 11---everything from going to G. Ross Lord Park (and being chased out at high speeds) to having 400 people at your house for tea. I wish things hadn't changed so much so quickly in the last two years---but I wish you well.

H.S - 14 years and going strong.
Thanks for the memories SAC!

Milton J. Barnes (1991-95) — New House

My four years at St. Andrew's College have been a roller coaster ride, one that I will never forget.

However, before I leave, there is some unfinished business that I must tend to. I have a few "thank you's" to make to key people who made a difference:

Mr. & Mrs. John Clements - I owe you a big "thank you". I came to you raw and uncut. However, you saw through that and recognized the talent in me. Thank you for believing in me each and every year.

Mr. Scoular - I owe you an even bigger "thank you". I still remmeber bumping into you that first time after my performance in "Paint Your Wagon"; you told me that I had a lot of potential and that I would be something someday. Thank you for your confidence, and thank you for being the best damn director there is. I will never forget you.

Mr. Bedard - Sir, I owe you the biggest "thank you" of all. It it weren't for you, and your bleief in me, I wouldn't be here. You alone stood up for me against all odds, and for that I am forever in your debt. It was a prieilege to have you in my corner. Mrs. Bedard "thank you" for alll your support and for being one of my biggest fans.

Mrs. Marsh & Mrs. Pilieci - "Thank you" for reading all my self-proclaimed literary masterpieces. Your kindness will never be forgotten.

Friends - "Thank you" for being there. I used to say that we were different, and had nothing in common. Now I know that we do. We are Andreans.

Mom & Dad - "Thank you" for giving me the opportunity to come to St. Andrew's. The sacrifice you made was a tribute to me; as will my success be a tribute to you. I love you.

P.S. - If anybody is trying to find me sometime in the future ... Look for my name in lights!

"Without struggle, there is no progress!" - Frederick Douglas

When I think of who I was when I got here and who I am now it is almost like looking at two different people. Five years sounds like a long time but here at St. Andrews so much happens every day that it feels more like five days. Each day has a hidden message that makes each person here a little bit better.

What I will remember most about my stay here are the friendships I have made. When I say friends that includes the masters as well, especially Mr. And Mrs. Perrier. Without the company, support, humour, and kindness of my friends SAC would not have been the same. For as long as I live I will never forget them.

Now that my time remaining here dwindles down to a few months I now realize just how much gratitude I owe my Mother and Father for sending me here. I am forever in their debt. I could not ask for anything more than what they have already done for me (but I probably will.). Where do I go from here? I guess I just keep going until I get to wherever it is I am going to.

I came to St.Andrew's in the fall of '93, not knowing if I was good enough to play first hockey or smart enough to stick around. First hockey became a reality and I was part of one of the most talented programs around. This team of hockey players was moulded into an efficient, dedicated and close group. As a team we experienced many highs which included MacPherson, OFSAA, New York and Boston. I would like to thank Mr. Dunford's guidance and the whip of Mr. Galajda for my growth in hockey as a player and a leader. I would also like to thank the guys on the team for being there through all the wins and the losses (less losses).

In school I survived Finite with Wenk and 2 years of chemistry with Mr. Smith. It wasn't a breeze; I had to work for every mark. The cramming was all worth it, and I believe I'm a little bit smarter now for it. I would like to thank Mr. Smith, Mr. Kinney, Mr. Hanson, Mr. Perrier and Mr. Walden for believing in me and helping me along the way. I would also like to give a final thanks to my parents and my family for supporting me during my SAC career. I would like to bid farewell to all the friends that I have made over my short 2 year stay. I will look forward to the homecomings and reunions in years to come. Keep in touch.

Coming to St. Andrew's four years ago was the best move I ever made, and justifying all my great memories in such a short space is demanding. I'll do my best.

Saying thanks to my mother and father isn't enough. Words can't describe how I feel about them, and their support over the years has been greatly appreciated. Thanks also goes to my brother Andrew, who made my entrance at SAC a little easier, "You do play BBall don't you?" and my sister Susan who is without a doubt the greatest sister in the world. A special thanks goes to Jenn for being you, and for always being there.

There are so many people to thank for making my experience at SAC so memorable. Mr. Josselyn, Mr. & Mrs. Perrier, Mr. Swan, and Mr. Somerville, your encouragement and generosity over the past few years has been greatly appreciated. Thanks also goes to Mr. Foy, Mr. Smith, and Mr. Bedard for their guidance, Mrs. Pilieci, Mrs. Bell, Mr. Herder and Mr. Arril.

Finally my friends. Without you I don't know where I would have ended up. Tim, "I can't find a better man," and Jeff, "You will always be the man for hitting that shot." Hurls and Ritchie "Where's the juice?" Thanks to all the prefects (P.E, E.B, C.P, J.D, R.B, J.A, J.L, R.L, N.D), and all the guys in Memorial, especially the family. There is no way to do justice to the last five years in a few paragraphs. Instead of trying to, I'll thank a few of the many people who have helped me through along the way, and say a few words to those I leave behind.

I owe the staff my most sincere thanks for guiding me to where I am today. I've come a long way from the crippled ninth-grader who stumbled into Dunlap Hall five years ago. In particular, thanks to Mr. Hiltz for inspiring me and giving me someone to look up to; Mr. Smith for providing wisdom (and quotables); Mr. Dominato for putting up with me; and Mr. Foy and the Rev. Arril for guiding me well. To my fellow grads: your friendship and support have meant everything to me. I hope you've had as much fun as I've had—keep in touch! Geoff, your sky has no limits; Mike, I still owe you one. To today's Andreans: I meant what I preached—get involved in everything Saint Andrew's has to offer, and seize the day! Mom and Dad, may God bless you both; I've never forgotten that I couldn't have done it without your love and support.

And now for something completely different.

When I was first asked to write about what SAC meant to me, my first thought was that I needed to think about it some more. Now three months later, I am no closer to the answer. I guess that SAC means everything to me. The friendships I have made, the teachers that have inspired me, and my housmaster who guided me have all helped to shape the person I am today.

After only two years SAC has taught me a number of valuble lessons, including that there is nothing better that a good friend, and that you can never have too little sleep.

At this point I would like to thank my parents for their support, I could never have gotten throuh these few years without you.

After spending all these years in SAC, I have changed for the better, not only as a student, but also as a person overall (I think). There were a lot of hills and valleys along the way, and finally I have made it through these seven years. It was like only yesterday when Mr. Galajda giving out ERs to everyone in the hallway of Mac House or dodging Mr. Clement's chalk in music class or hearing Mouse whining as Mr.Kimmerer chucked him out the window. I will always cherish these memories. SAC was like a second home of mine.

Finally, I am here for the Grad comments. Three years at SAC have taught me to survive in a foreign country without the assistance of my parents - doing my laundry and studying - going to the library downtown on a freezing day. All these experiences at SAC will remain in my heart and I will never ever forget my stay.

I have to say thanks to all my friends at SAC: Waffy, Billy, Angus, Fu, Eric, Vincent, Justin, Danny, Randy, Raymond, Andrew, Chris, Ng, Wilf, Jan, Chet and Martin. Thanks for sharing your happiness with me during my twenty-six thousand minutes at SAC. Thanks to the teachers at SAC; especially Mr. Smith, Mr. Kimmerer, Mr. Dominato, Mr. Scoular, Mr. Perrier, Mr. and Mrs. Hiltz and Mr. Foy. Thanks for sharing your knowledge and experience with me. And of course a million thanks to my parents who support me in this school. Thanks Dad! Thanks Mum!

Activities: Basketball II; Volleyball II; Badminton I.

Being in SAC has been a great experience for me. It gave me a chance to learn things that are valuable to me that will last me a lifetime. Things like responsibility, organization, and communication. Keeping up with the intensive work in school is already a difficult task. Doing all the duties that had to be done in order to help keep the in good shape adds into the work load. Yet, I managed to accomplish such occupations, thanks to all the teachers that gave me support. I especially want to give thanks to Mr. Foy, my housemaster, who taught me organization (I'm not referring to my room). With this useful tool, I was able to deal with the school work with ease. Coming to SAC, the first thought that came to mind was "NO WAY!!!" Yet after only two years of living in this community, I have no regrets of being here. Even though there were many hardships and rough times, but these things slowly fade away. The friends that I had made here also made it go faster. I guess that another advantage of being here is the friendships that were created. These people that I have met practically lived with me for two years, and these kind of bond is really hard to break. Finally, and most importantly, I'd like to give thanks to my parents who gave me this opportunity to become a member of St. Andrew's College and lead me into the next step of maturity.

Sayings: Yea, of course I'm driving; Hey Manny, lets piss Brenna off; Grab me one too; I'm staying at Manny's sir; Sorry Neil; HEY whoers!; 'nite Softcore; Oh yea, I remember that; Well, you are; Oh, come on (followed by various peer pressure tactics); Manny, we're back stage.

Activities: First Hockey 2.Ia OFSAA Champs '93(MIP '93); First Football 2a (MIP'93); discoverer of Big Red; First suntanning 2a; Fantasia '95; First track (pole vault) 2a ISAA Champs; Party Central host, the place where we dwell; a counsellor to those in distress; Co-trooper of the Sifton Hardcore elite.

If university is regarded as the best year's of one's life, then I don't have words to describe my adventure at SAC. From the beginning of my first year in grade II, when I was taken under the wing of McKegue, Hoover, Nick and the Sharon boys, I understood that this may be the only place on earth where everyone was here to aid each other accomplish the same thing: go as hard as you possibly can at everything you do.

The greatest aspect of St. Andrew's, I have realized is the family bond created with everyone affiliated within our community. Leaving SAC, loneliness is an unattainable feeling never possible to be reached. The friends I have made will be with me forever. I have learned the meaning of respect, and so much goes out to my mother and father who gave me this opportunity. I think that sometimes my dad may not believe that I am thankful for everything he has given me because we are not always on the same wavelength, but I truly am greatful. And for maybe this opportunity alone that he has given me, I feel I will be in debt all my life. Usually because of abnormal circumstances, I have come to learn the greatest quality that a mother possesses: they will always be on your side when nobody else is. There can not be enough recognition given to my two second families: The Barron's and Mantrop's. I am forever gracious for being provided with a place to fall down when I could no longer stand.

Activities: Tier II Volleyball (captain), Lifeguard, Sr. Ski Team, Rugby, Ist quiche, Musical (THE SALOONKEEPER'S DAUGHTER), Ist pushing match in front of Down Under, (one practice for Ist football).

I can't start this by saying....."The last 4 years have been tremendous!....." But I can say it feels like I have been here for longer than one year! (In a good way). I owe a lot of the thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Perrier; who really helped me settle in and find my niche at St. Andrew's. If I didn't decide to come to St. Andrew's I would probably be at the corner of Markham road and Highway 7 holding a sign that reads, "Will work for quiche!" In other words I'm very happy I came.

The friendships made will last a lifetime and I'm glad I graduated with such a cool bunch of guys. My roomate Lawrence, put up with my insanity, as I did with his negligence of tidyness. St. Andrew's allows us the chance to meet all of these new friends, friends I will remember and keep in touch with the rest of my life.

I would like to thank all of the teachers of the school, espeacially Mr. and Mrs. Clements for directing the musical that was a very large success. The rest of the teachers really helped me prepare for University and I am very thankfull for their time and effort.

My family deserves a round of applause as well. They are the ones who introduced me to the idea of going to a new school; I would never have even considered a private school, but I'm glad I came. Glenn, I hope you come here next year (for longer than two days). Scott continue to do whatever it is you do; you seem to do it well and Mom and Dad I owe so much to you, you've brought me up the right way.

So long St. Andrew's, you have given me much more than I ever thought possible. To all the graduates of 1995: "LONG MAY YOU RUN."

Eight years ago, just the thought of having to go to school on a saturday morning was enough of a reason NOT to attend St. Andrew's College. And I realize now, in my graduating year at SAC that if I had followed intuition back then, it would have been one of the greatest mistakes made since the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbour. Thank you Mom and Dad for the sacrifices (the lost vacations, the multiple mortgages...) you made to send me to such a prestigious learning institution. To my brothers, thank you for cheering me on when I succeeded, and consoling me in my loss; I'll miss you guys next year at "uni", but I won't be gone forever. To my better half (over the fence and across the yard), thank you for 2 years of joy and pain, your caring mind and loving smile; you helped me get through a lot of homework filled, sleepless nights.

'Nuff respect to the members of "the seven year club" (you all know who you are), to my fellow prefects, Juice, MAAARRRKOOO, Helmu, Auzi, Lover, Cozier, Beetle, BREN, Jaxs, Heinig and all those who made coming to school everyday a bearable experience. To the masters, especially Messrs. Smith, Foy, Hiltz, and Kinney, thank you for teaching me lessons of the classroom and of life. Thanks also to Ed McNally, the one coach out of any coach who knew me as a soccer player and as a friend (hope to see you at Hearts S.C). And with that, my SAC dilemma is closed...

Activities: I soccer (4 yrs), I.S.A.A C.I.S.A.A and Early Bird Tourn. champions (1993), UIS, 17, and I rugby, senior x-country ski (I.S.A.A champions 1995), Downhill ski, Buchanan (II) colours award, FAMILY Brother with Buley, Ham, and distant cousin Chicken, Eric's apartment member, and lots more but too complicated to explain.

It is really hard for me to summarize all these years I have been at S.A.C, because if I was to write everything I did, learned, and experimented, I would take up to four entire yearbooks.

When I first came to S.A.C, I was fourteen and spoke no English; It was also the first time I had left my family and friends in Spain, and to make it worse I was bumped up to grade ten, and so, to Memorial house, with the eldest boys. This first year was so hard for me, but thanks to the ever-lasting friends I made, and my Housemaster and wife, MR. and MRS. Perrier, I carried on through the year learning English fast, and slowly, "fitting into" the S.A.C environment. Whenever I got back from my long and extended vacations, I would cry for a week straight, I was used to desert high temperatures all year round in Spain, so feeling the artic-like temperatures was a sour new feeling that made things even worse. Teachers, friends, and even the cleaning staff would help me whenever I bored them with my sad feelings. But every day I noticed that living at S.A.C was making me stronger in the way that I was now independent and could survive by myself; I noticed that everytime I got back home, I'd see things from different point of view, and I felt that I was somewhat more mature than my colleagues. Years went by, My English got perfect, even my French did, and now I felt that S.A.C had transformed into my new home, until I got to grade 13, where I have to farewell all this, and start a new chapter of my life. I will always miss S.A.C, and the friends I made, and I thank S.A.C for guiding me towards a bright future. I also thank my family for making the effort of sending me here from Spain, I'll never forget that.

From the trip up the long driveway in September of '88 to my closing words on prize day in '95 SAC has been an experience of a lifetime. This school, which defines education, has played an integral part of my life in the past seven years and the memories will last forever. The teachers (Mr. Swan, Kinney, Foy, Ray, Clemments, Robinson and Paolini) here have inspired me to be satisfied with nothing better then perfect and to strive for my goals. My brothers; who paved the road for me, are both inspirational individuals in my life and I wish them all the best in their future. I would like to take this time to specially thank my parents who have worked and saved to keep me at SAC. Through times of dispair they were there to give hope, they travelled distances to cheer me on, and always backed my judgment. I love you both very much and owe you everything. I promise you that these seven years were worth every penny.

Finally, I would like to thank my friends for sticking with me. Friends who I could count on and trust. Thank you for making SAC so enjoyable (especially Lux who even held the bucket when I was sick). Party on Prefects and good luck in life.

Seven years ago I entered SAC as a snivelling little brat, now I'm a snivelling big brat. There are two aspects of St. Andrew's; the obvious and the concealed. I tried to keep myself concealed but obviously it didn't work because "they" always caught us when we were half way across the lower fields at 2:30 in the morning. There were many weekends spent at the college due to this aspect of keeping concealed. It is difficult to conceal oneself as you cross the quad in front of the headmasters office for example. There were some obvious things like school which took account in my stay at S. Andrew's Penni-. I mean college. Every morning I'm look forward to seeing Bill's smiling face as he buffed the halls of Fluvial house, and seeing Cliff working away in the dining hall. All these little things make up the world of S. Andrew's. If it wasn't for people like me this school would be awfully boring. I would like to thank my housemasters, Mr. Foy, and Mr. Hanson, and my tutor Mr. Whitehead. Thanks also to my Friends, you know who you are. Loving thanks to my parents, without them I wouldn't be here right now.

Activities: Attending my classes, Being in the library instead of being doing sports, being in 162 at lunch time (Flavelle)

When I first came here from Montreal, I was afraid it was going to be pretty hard because it was english, and a very known school. I was right again. Having two math courses and being in an english school must have been the biggest challenge I faced. I had the chance to meet a lot of people, and make two really good friends, who influenced me in their own way: Joyo and Darryl Bishop. Darryl: thanks for understanding all my "trips" and Joyo: thanks for being me "monkey brother" ... Thanks to M. Bedard, M. Grenier, M. Cameroun, Ms. Chalveche and M. Arril for talking to me in french and making me feel more at home. There were a few people in grade 12 I would have liked to know, but I guessed the year went too fast. Finally, and most of all, I want to thank my mother, family, and friends in Montreal who encouraged me to come here and who were so close. I almost forgot to thank John Lennon and the Beatles in the sense that they influenced me in a good way.

There is nothing one can say that will accurately portray my feelings for SAC. Having been here for five years, I have learned how the system works, and I have to say I will not miss it. But that is only part of my leaving. When I came to SAC in 1990, I was a shy boy with little self confidence. Today I leave proud of who I am, unafraid to make a statement.

It would be unfair of me to leave without saying thank-you to all the staff here who have helped me get through. You have all inspired me in one way or another. Your guidance, patience, and pressures have all helped me through. To Mr. Smith, I would like to say a special thank-you, you put up with my antics and kept me in line.

I should also thanal have only one message. Over the past four years as editor, I have read many grad comments, and the one thing that stays in my mind is the word involvement. That is really what SAC is about. To get the most out of the school you must put everything you possible can into it. This does not (as many people interpret it) mean do everything that is asked of you, it means do more. Take the initiative to do something that will cause people to look back and remember you. Your live is less than a quarter done, give those who know you here reason to remember you.

When I came to St. Andrew's five years ago, I had no idea what I was getting into. Looking back at these years, it was apparent that I was entering an institution that shaped me both mentally and physically. SAC has become an important aspect of my life. It taught me teamwork, responsibility and leadership. However, it was not an easy ride and I have to thank the handful of people that kept me sane.

I'd like to say thank-you to my brother, Duane, and the friends that I've made over the years who survived SAC life. Good luck to all my fellow Andreans, for what ever you do, "Quit Ye Like Men, Be Strong." I'd also like to thank Audrey; without you, it would have been a long and lonely road. Special thanks to my parents, for without your support and large contributions ($$$$$$) such an opportunity to further my education would not have been possible. It has been an enrichening experience.

Seven years after starting at SAC the teachers grieve more and more over my departure. It was that where I mat many friends and wonder if I ever may see them again. Although now a new adventure begins with many new people, the old ones will not be forgotten. I often like to reminisce over the late night leaves, bugging teachers, and other various activities against the school rules, because those activities are the ones that brought us together. Rude Boy, Jeff and I had some adventures with Jo that I try to remember, but sometimes it's hard. There are many people I would like to thank (you know who you are) but I'm not writing a novel, sorry. It was not for my brother lending an ear to listen, things could have been worse. Without my girlfriend, life might have been a little harder and rougher. Thanks - Marcus and Jen. Anyway, it was a long, long journey and the support of my Mother, Father and the rest of the family was, and still is much appreciated. Finally I am gone.

Well, well, well it's time to do grad comments. I really didn't think it would come to this but I'm kind of glad it has come to this. Now ends another chapter of my life and it's time to reflect on all the things that has happened during my time at SAC.

I came here thinkin' that this time at SAC would go slow and uneventful. As I look back, there's too many things that I've done, by myself and with the boys. If I didn't come here I would have never met all the great people and make great friends. I've seen many a friend go here at SAC but made many new friends for life. I would of never have played football or rugby. All the games, classes, cadets, parties, late nights, etc. will give me the best memories of my life. One learns so much at SAC about oneself, life, "vectors", the first thing, and what happens when you get off the plane in the Bahamas. (You get shot!)

Thank you, Mom and Dad for everything you've done. You've made great sacrifices to send me here and without you I am nothing. Thanks to all the teachers that have taught me and that haven't taught me.

No matter what people say about how bad it is here or how the hate SAC and can't wait to leave but I know the SAC experience is THE BEST.

In six years this place can really grow on you. Room 205, third floor, Sifton House. That literally sums up the biggest thing SAC has given me: a home away from home. That's not to say I've always felt this way about this place, far from. When I walked into the Head Master's Tea on that September day in '89, wearing those stiff pants and that barber-shop tie, I was damned sure this was not the place for me to be. I pouted through the days, weeks, months and wouldn't you know it I made a few friends along the way. Although there was no way I was going to admit it to my parents at the time, I was becoming attached to this place. I didn't know just how tight this attachment would become until I sat down here to write about leaving it all. SAC has and always will affect the lives it touches in their own individual ways. If you ask my mom about the finest thing SAC has given me she would say it's my born-again appreciation for her home cooking. I would be lying if I said there was a part of my life that SAC hasn't touched. But most of all boarding life has taught me how to live and share my space with others; to compromise and make sacrifices in comfort and to listen...most importantly to listen.

There is no doubt that SAC will provide a bulk of memories, good, bad and some I would probably much rather not look back upon at all. To the ones who made these memories possible in the first place: my dad and mom, no amount of thanx can ever be enough. May, thanx for putting up with all the crap I'm always shovelling and for being someone I could talk to.

Hails go out to the Peanut Parade: Larry, Biggs, Simy, Ratty, Ian and a Salaam to Max. Special thanx to Mr. Kimmerer for his motivational report card comments.

Activities: Prefect, Co-Head-of-Flavelle-house, Cadet Commanding Officer (Captain) of Flavelle, Ist Rugby 2a, Ist Football (#69), 2nd Swimming 2a (Captain Ia), Macdonald House-Captain '94, Rugby Tour- England '94, Captain of North-end-Flavelle-house-third-floor-hall-hockey, Captain of Islander\Oriental hockey game (Macpherson '95), Sharon Stone worshipper, Procrastinator.

A lot of people look at me and say "Jesus, you've only here for two years and accomplished all of that?" My answer is "Yeah, pretty amazing huh?" But the truth is, and what people keep failing to see, is that SAC isn't here to pander for and babysit rich kids, it's here for people to take a great opportunity and make the most of themselves. I also remember saying to Mr. Foy "Jeez, It's weird, that I'm a prefect and Head-of-house" "Not only that, " he said, "but you're an Islander too!" That comment broke the ice for me, I accomplished everything that I have through being myself (though an Islander), people commonly get caught up with life and don't take the time to look at the small things and/or the little people, but you have to.

I want to thank all of my teachers and motivators separately, but there isn't enough space (and I might miss someone). But to my teachers, tutors, coaches, commanders, motivators, There is one word that sums you all up to me, respect to tradition and all, but that word is friends, thank you. To Mr. Foy, (who never missed an oppotunity to make a wisecrack against Islanders) thank you, without you none of this would be possible; your presence and motivation acted as a second father for me. To Janni, Somers, Paul, Austin, Lux, Primo, Jan, Sim, Kai, Laundry, Ham, and the Islanders thank you.

Now to the people -who are probably are cursing me for not mentioning them yet- my parents. Mum, thanks for your nagging and friendship, without which wouldn't make you my Mum- Dad, thanks for your wise-cracks, trust and advice, without which wouldn't make you my dad- I love you.

As I look back at all the years I spent at SAC, I begin realize to what extent my life has been changed. My first years at SAC were very memorable and the friends I made would be friends for life. I remember feeling as if my years at SAC would never end, but its my last year already.

St. Andrew's is more than an institution of learning, but is an experience which helps prepare students for the "real world". St. Andrew's provides discipline, academics, sports, and cadets, all of these ingredients have helped me on my way to university. Without trying to sound like a commercial to hoax promising students into our small community, I would like to thank St. Andrew's for the educational experiences I have received over the years that I have been here.

I have many people to thank for my many years at St. Andrew's, but the most important are my parents. They supported me and influenced me greatly. I would also like to thank all my friends which made my stay at SAC a memorable one, and one that I will not easily forget.

When looking back at the four years of attending S.A.C. I have learnt many things. "Never to eat yellow snow" comes to mind and also on a more serious note, never to under estimate yourself. I thank my family for giving me this opportunity of a life time and believing in me when I said that I could get into university with my marks. Thanks to Mr. Foy for being an extended father to me and kicking my butt into gear when I needed it. Also the teachers should be thanked for steering me in the right directions and providing the assistance I needed to get there. Thanks should go to Mr. Bedard who stuck with me in the hard times and smiled in the good times. You cannot live at S.A.C. and not acquire good friends like Inniss, Ratty, Beatle, Biggs, the Christies, Cozier, Larry, and Chicken Wing, the atmosphere at school would be too normal. Good luck to all you guys.

Well after saying thanks to everyone there is only one thing left to say, and that is, I bid you farewell!

Activities: Senior House League; Volleyball and badminton (MIP) (UI6, II); I badminton (MIP); Library Supervisor; Head of Cadets Store; Community Service.

Life is full of changes. We need changes because we are improving all the time. However, sometimes I feel really tired of them, especially at this time of the year, leaving from high school to the university level.

Being a member of the SAC's community makes me feel warm, encouraged and proud. I appreciated teachers' and friends' concern when I was sad and despairing; comments from teachers were always encouraging; and the many activities that we did, as a whole, every year (carol service, community service and cadets etc), made us proud of being here at SAC. All the people whom I will never forget, and the activities which will be always in my mind, remind me how fortunate I am.

To go to university suggests that I am being promoted to another level of my life; it is an indication of being a mature Andrean. Although I have to leave this wonderful society soon, I am sure the school's spirit will be with me forever.

Tim: Oh sir, I was in infirmary <coughing> Mr.Ray: Well, do you have any note from the infirmary? Tim: ....."
Activities: Cross Country Run (for me, it's cross-country walk and rest); Sr Fencing; II Swimming (I've learned four styles of drowning); Sr. Squash (I signed up but never showed up); I Badminton; UI7 Rugby (for me, it was a half-term sport).

Four years ago, I was supposed to write an entrance essay to get in, and now, I am writing a grad. comment to get out; time runs so fast. Definitely, these four years of study at SAC are so memorable that they do take up a large, large part of my memory (if I happen to have one), and my feelings toward the college are so hard to be translated into words (so why the hell am I writing this now?) Whatever, I truly appreciate the fact that SAC has given me the skills I will need to cope with my university studies in the near future and the guidance I need to construct my long-term plans. Most important of all, I should thank SAC also for the opportunities it has provided me with to find out where my talents and where my weakpoints are.

If one wants to be bored and comes to ask me which corner in the SAC compass I will remember the most, I would possibly pick the hallway which is between the three senior houses, because it is the path I usually had to walk through to visit my friends in the Flavelle zone and it also is, occasionally, where I got caught by Mr.Kimmerer on fooling around after bedtime. However, my memory in Sifton is sweet overall and it will last forever. And, Mr. Kimmer, one day I will know you were right, thank you sir!

Reflecting back on my six years at the school, determination and self-motivation have guided me along the SAC road. From the annual Carol Service to the Cadet Inspection, the SAC tradition has a large impact on my life. Without the support from my parents, friends and teachers, I would never have fulfilled my accomplishments. Everyday, it seems like a new beginning. It looks as though I never dream to see the end of my high school years, but here I am leaving this wonderful institution of learning.

Leaving this school can be as hard as entering six years ago. The memories of my friends and teachers will be remembered as long as I live. They have given me a pleasurable experience and a delightful time. Friends become life long pals and foes vanish into thin air. Most importantly, I learned that nothing will succeed unless you take the personal initiatives. "Quit to be like men, be strong." Thanks to my mom and dad, my brother and sister, my friends, and my teachers for giving me the motivation to be the best. May God be with each one of you in the future. Amen.

"From the dark end of the street, To the bright side of the road, Into this life we're born, Baby sometimes we don't know why, And time seems to go by so fast, In the twinkling of an eye...."

This excerpt from the Van Morrison classic, Bright Side of the Road, adequately sums up my three years at St. Andrew's College. Looking back, the years seem to have vanished into thin air. It feels like only yesterday that I was meet by Mr. Smith paralysing gaze at Orientation Day; a stare that sent shivers racing up my spine. So much has happened in so short a period of time, and I have been left with memories to last a lifetime. Having been a dayboy in my first year and a boarder the following two years, I was introduced to the different aspects of the two segments of the school and the best of both worlds. I have learned much in face of the good times and the bad. These lessons have chiselled my character and shown me the rewards of hard work, determination, and the drive for excellence. The school has prepared me well for the challenges and uncertainties that await in the future.

When I look back at the years that have passed by I will always cherish the friends that helped make my stay at St. Andrew's so memorable. Thanks to JI,PQ,CH,EB,LP,DB,NM,EH,CV,ML,RL, the boys of Flavelle, and the rest of you I haven't mentioned. I also appreciate all the support from my masters, who got me through the years. I wish to pay special gratitude to Mr. Foy whose guidance and good humour could brighten up almost any situation. Finally, thanks Mom and Dad for giving me this opportunity and for your investment into my future. Who knows, maybe in a few years I can help you pay off the family debt! Over the past 7 years or 1800 days at St. Andrew's, I've gotten a great education, the sports were really fun along with all of the other extra circular activities. However, you can get a good education anywhere. What you can't get are the kinds of friends that I've made over the past 7 years. These friends are for a lifetime.

Mom and Dad, you know none of this was possible without you. For all of your hard work, I am truly grateful. Thanks fro giving me the chance. Tomika, you've paved the way for me and it made it a lot easier. You were me biggest inspiration. All of you always pushed me to do better and you believed that I could. I love you guys!

My few years at SAC have been an interesting and most memorable experience. It has been a time for growth and maturity, both academically and socially. There are many people at SAC that I'm heavily in debt to for their service and experience - to them I give my best wishes and thanks. First of all, thanks to Mum and Dad for giving me the opportunity to study at SAC; to them I send my love. I would also like to extend my thanks to Mr Wenk for his thoughtfulness and consideration, Mr. Kinney and Mr. Harper for their teaching and support, and Mr. Myrans and Mr. Timms for being such wonderfull teachers. I enjoyed every class that I had this year! I will also be missing many friends that I've met and hope to keep in touch with you all in the future. Thank-you all, it's been an experience!

When my parents first told Euan and I that we were going to attend an all boys private school in Aurora, I was anxious and didn't know what to expect. But what I found at SAC was not something that can be comprehended without actually going. Being an Andrean is not an easy task. This school pushes you to the limit and brings out the best in you. My most memorable moment at SAC was Mr. Cowell's biking expedition to New Hampshire. We didn't do a significant amount of cycling but it was an experience I will never forget.

The friends I have made at SAC are unforgettable. Without these great people, the SAC experience would not have been complete. You know who you are, thanks for always being there. In addition to the students, I would like to thank Mr. Hiltz, Mr. Cowell, Mr. Kimmerer, Mr. Kinney and Mr. Smith for your guidance and extra help.

Most importantly, it is my parents who I thank, love and appreciate the most. They have done so much for me. There were always there, and would go the extra mile to make my life at SAC a happy and enjoyable one. I will always be in debt to them for making me an Andrean!

It all started seven years ago in Mac House. It was tough starting out as a young border but I pulled my way through it. In grade ten I became part of the New House Clan. Now I sit here on the verge of graduation and I don't know where these seven years have gone. Life at St. Andrew's has given me special memories, good and bad ones. St. Andrew's gave me the opportunity to explore places outside of the classroom which reflect on a proper education. Through these experiences I have learned how to be a leader and these skills will be with me for the rest of my life.

Some special shout outs go to my long time tutor Mr. Harper, Mrs. Bell, as well as Mrs. Pilieci and Ms. Marsh, the two hardest working people in the school. My parents have always pushed me to do my best and I will always commend them for that. I've had friends come and go, some long term and some short and I like to wish them good luck in the future. I am looking forward to moving on and I will always be proud to say that I am an old boy of St. Andrew's College.

The first thing I learned in this school is the power of our signature. Just sign for it and your parents will pay for it. "How much is the photocopy card?", "You don't have to pay, just sign for it." However, after several months of bills, my parents decided that I will do the paying from then on. The second thing I learned, and perhaps the most important thing I will ever learn in life is time management. Since I am a boarder, it also takes a lot of self-discipline, something I am lacking, to put a time schedule into action. This is a reason why I am the MVP of the late nights club.

Finally, I would like to say thank you. First, I would like to thank my parents for sending me to this school. What I first came to St. Andrew's, I felt scared at first about having to stay here because of all the stories I had heard about boarding school. I soon realized that I was wrong and never regretted coming here and boarding. It was a good experience meeting all the many people and learning to live on my own. The Masters of St. Andrew's that I had as teachers and even some of those that I never had taught my many things and helped me to mature both mentally and academically. For this I thank them. Especially Mr. Sommerville, Mr. Walden, the Perrier's, Mr. Timms and even Mr. Smith, for some reason he never overwhelmed me with his rather loud voice. Finally I want to thank most of all my parents, because even through the hard times I had they provided me with the support I needed to keep up with my studies and not to give up hope.

What is there to do after I get out? Life. SAC has prepared me for life. They have provided an environment in which I was able to adapt and cope. I will miss the every morning chapel service, Wenkulus, and SAC food. I have learned that life is just not about academics, but about the extra curricular. I build my friendship, and my personality. I want to say thank you Mom and Dad for tolerating me and putting me in SAC. I also want to say thank you to all the teachers who have helped me over the years. Especially to Mr. Halstead, Mr. Walden, and Mr. Arril. To future grads, good luck during your years at SAC. So long, Vong, Wan, Young, Stock, Ho, Kong, Wong and to whoever I missed. I will see you in 10 years.

It has been seven long years and finally the journey has come to an end. I have many people to thank for helping me through the tough times I have experienced. I made it very difficult for myself in the last couple years and had to straigten myself self out before I ruined my chance of becoming anything I would be content with. Thanks very much to my friends here at SAC, Paul, Helmut, Rob, Darren, and many others. It's been a lot of fun, the parties, games, and other excursions. I won't forget any of them. Thankyou Mr. Swan for standing by me and helping me through problems that really didn't concern you. I know I have been a real burden for the last two years but I think that without your help and support I would never have gotten through my OAC's alive, thankyou mom and dad. I love you both very much. Thanks to my closest friend Jaye-Dallas Birgeno for making me see what I couldn't, that OAC's were a priority. I love you for that and everything else you've done for me. Don't worry George I wouldn't ever forget you! Bye-Bye now!

I have learned many things over the years at SAC. You must appreciate your friends and, dare I say it, your teachers aswell, because without both you become a no-one and are destined to fade away. Through appreciation however, you gain respect and trust, and if harnaced, you are destined to succeed. There are so many people who need to be thanked for my stay here at the college. My friends, we've had so many good times together and I will remember them allways. To the teachers for putting up with me, and still continueing to teach me. To the great coaches I've had; each has had a special affect on me and I have only grown from those experiences. To the rest of the administration for the help and support. A special thanks must go to Mrs. Perrier for being one of my biggest supporters. To my Happy Thought for always being there for me and helping the whole way pinch-pinch-pinch forever! To all my grandparents for keeping us going, much love. Lisa, my sister, thankyou for showing me how much energy one can have if they only try. Fred, my brother, although, we've had our differences, I admire you. You are the best player I've ever been priviledged enough to step on the ice with. I love tou both. Mom, you have been taken for granted by all of us, but we realize that you are what keeps us going and we all love you. Finally to my father Reg, you are my hero and I love you.

I did not get through five years of St. Andrew's because of what kind of place it is, but because of the people here. My friends were there when I needed them, and they will be there when I need them again. I won't forget all the times we've had: Montreal, parties, Eric's place, Hockey games, the common room, Bill, Chief, and the last Havergal dance.

My time here went by really fast, and it does not seem possible that I only have a few months left. I hope that S.A.C. will have had enough impact on me that I will eventually get where I want to go.

I should thank Mr. Bedard for letting me stay, Nick for keeping me on track, and Mr. Kimmerer for just being my buddy.

Like a drowning man that clenches for straws and does not think he has a chance, never, never say die! Climb your mountain, no matter how high!

This year at St. Andrew's has been a very good experience for me. It has taught me things about people, how the world runs and most of all about myself. It has proved to me that the race is not for the swift but for the one who can endure it till the end.

For this year, I would like to say thanks first of all to my mother. For without you, this academic year would have been impossible. You were the only one that believed in me and I thank you for sticking with me throughout.

I would also like to say thanks to all of the masters who have imparted their knowledge to me. Such as Mr. Wenk, Mr. Timms, Mr. Kinney, Mr. Myrans, Mr. Jones, Mr. Hiltz, and especially Mr. Walden for giving me that helpful push every time I stepped into your class.

Thank you to my classmates, those graduating and those who remain. Richard Musaib-Ali, Robert Sands, Lawrence Shadeed, Robert and Bren Christie, Victor Richards, Sean Cozier, Suart Mottley, Somers Kempe, and Richard Lewis. Keep on moving!

I will miss the wonderful friends I have met and Cherish dearly the memories I have made.

The three past years here at St. Andrew's has taught me a lot. It helped me because a more mature and responsible individual, it has given me a new perspective on life.

I would like to thank the two most important people in my life; my mom and dad. Without you I'm nothing, but with the support you have given me I have succeeded and accomplished my goals. To my father, thank you for pushing me that extra mile and always being there for me. To my 'grammy' thanks for providing the food when it was well needed and also to help me function. But most of all I say thank you to the teachers who taught me and to the friendly staff who was always there when needed. To Mr. Josseyln who taught me how to be a team player and not play as an individual; to Mr. Kimmerer who made me into a more disciplined person and who always was there when needed or called upon; to Mr. Walden who has been and excellent advisor and a friend and has helped me improve tremendously in my academic skills; most of all to Mr. Bedard who is one of the most co-operative and friendliest people I know. He is a person that always looks at the good side and hardly ever at the bad. When needed you could always find him and talk to him. Before I leave I say again to the teachers and staff thank you , thank you for putting up with me for three whole years; it means a lot.

Nuff respect to the Radication cartel: Brady, Bunny, Omar, Emelike, Karri, and Stevan. At first I want to thank my parents who offered me the opportunity to stay at SAC. Then I want to thank my taeachers and Mr Foy for helping me throughout the year making me feel at home and comfortable in a foreign country and culture.

SAC is a great school where I learned to be a member of a community and how to behave in a community. It was my first year at a boarding school and I learned to take responsibility and leadership (help running the house).

I made a lot of new friends with who I will stay in contact also after this year even though they are far away. Before I came here I lost my interest in sports but during my year at SAC I felt new team spirit. That's one of the things I enoyed the most, that the teams are like families, they stick together.

So I can't say more than "THANK YOU SAC FOR AN UNFORGETABLE YEAR IN MY SCHOOL CAREER! I am glad to be an Andrean."

St. Andrew's nas been a good, (actually very good) experience for me. I've become friends with people I least expected to have as friends. But, where there are friends, there was enemies. Not enemies where there was war involved but trust.

I would like to thank Mr. & Mrs. Perrier for all that they've done for me. Mrs. Perrier, for controlling herself whenever I teased her about male chauvinistic jokes (which I used to do every day).

To all da crew .... RESPECT DUE! Big up who fe get big up, and shot u[who fe get shot up. But most of all, I'd like to thank my father and uncle "B" for not giving up on me whenever I was going through tough times.

First of all, I have to thank Amb#### for all the FRIENDS. Now lets get serious. I would like to thank my parents for sending me to SAC, for their support both finacially and emotionally. During this short year at SAC, I have experienced many ups and downs. In the beginning , I was not used to the boarding life because I have no friends in this school. However I did make friends at the end. Life at SAC would be very hard without all the support that my friends have given me. Most of all, I have learned how to survive in a competitive and complicated society which we live in.

Last but not least, I would like to thank my teachers for their patients and encouragements given to me.

Most importantly I would like to thank Jimmy, Jacky, Tachee, and Fung for introducing the friends and the school to me.

My two years at St. Andrew's College were short but memorable. I can still remember my first day at SAC; I was a total stranger to those people who are now my best friends. To try to summarize so few words what St. Andrew's has meant to me is virtually impossible. SAC can not be explained, just experienced. What it has taught me is responsibility, maturity, and integrity. There are so many friends who I can never forget in my life bring me so much good time in these two years. Anthony, Tim, Edric, Scott, Lawrence, and Wilson I will always remember you guys!

It's not easy to say good-bye to a place after seven years, especially a place like SAC which provides a good environment for a well-rounded life. In a day, one is : able to have a prayer, be educated, stay in contact with innumerable resources (i.e. CD-ROM, P-Mail, etc.) and let loose on any one if the playing fields. Through these daily activities and basic routines, a student like myself, can make friends with teachers and students and bond in relationship that will last past the gates at 15800 Yonge Street long after they have graduated.

I would like to thank my teachers, the library staff, coaches, and friends for making my life at St. Andrew's such a memorable experience. You have all been a great inspiration to me. I would like to thank my parents for providing me the opportunity to experience St. Andrew's College. They made it possible for me to attend the school for seven years and will always be there in my times of need - Many Thanks!

I would like to wish the SAC community "All the Best" and "Good Health" in the future. Remember:"Quite Ye Like Men, Be String!" ... And let's keep in touch.

My first and last year at SAC has been a demanding yet enjoyable experience. The year proved difficult as I had to adjust to a very different way of life, not only academically but socially and culturally as well. Now that I am leaving I feel both nostalgia and relief; for I know my time at SAC has been positive and worthwhile, not only academically, because the people I have met and the friendships I share will stay in me all my life. I would like to say to all the teachers I have had here at SAC that I have learned things from every one of you, in different ways but most important that you have though me things about myself in very different ways. Thank you Mr. Wenk, Mr.Timms, Mr. Walden, Mr. Myrans, Mr. Halstead and Mr. Somerville. Also, I would like to thank Mr. and Mrs. Perrier for their tolerance and good will that made my time at Memorial House a comfortable one.

The river keeps flowing even though something has come to a stop. However, my four years experience at St. Andrew's College is a valuable one lifelong. This was my first time to experience a school that gave me the feeling of one whole family. I want to thank all my friends, especially Johan, since they are the major components of my happy and fruitful life at SAC.

I want to thank Mrs. D.Hiltz for her help in English. I also want to thank Mr. Hiltz for giving me the most fruitful Physics course I have ever had in my life-thank you Mr. Hiltz! I want to thank Mr. smith, and Mrs. Bell for helping me with university applications...and I hope no one will chew gum at school, so Mr. Smith will not have to worry too much! At last, I want to give all my thanks to Mr. Halstead for his guidance, advice and help. Without you, I would have been drowned by the cruel river. Thank you, Mr. Halstead--you are my "bridge over troubled water"!

When I see the Gates, and this stage of my trip has come to an end, I will continue travelling alone in my journey, but when I look back at the Gates, I will recall the happiness and joy I had, and I will smile.

I can't believe it. The marathon is over. I've survived seven years at SAC. Many years from now when I look back to the days I spent here, I'll probably laugh for the most part. Laugh at the characters I met, the running of laps around the Quad, the standing at attention in green kilts during what seemed the hottest days of the year, the signing of the late book every morning, the three-hour bus rides to Trinity in Port Hope, and the strange odours which wafted out of the Dining Hall every day at high noon.

I'm looking forward to the future and am very grateful for the sound education I received here. The teachers, who never seem to change, have been the most important aspect of this school's life. I commend them all for not going totally insane (well maybe some of them hide it better than others).

I thank my mother and father for all of the hardship and sacrifices they have made in order to send me to a school like this. Their love and support has always been appreciated. I could not ask for more caring parents. I would also like to thank all the extra people in my family circle who have gone out of their way to help everything run smoothly (both Grandmas, we couldn't have done it without ya! You too Arlene).

I will never forget St.Andrews. It has shaped everything I am today and has given me great incite into the world I am about to enter. God help us all!

First of all I would like to thank my parents for giving me this wonderful opportunity to come to St. Andrew's College. I know I didn't really want to come here at the start but after spending two consecutive years here I'm glad my dad advised me to do so. Without you this could never of happen. I would also like to thank my brothers Brent and Jeff and my sister Steph for supporting me too. Secondly, I would like to thank Kai for driving me everywhere without crashing. Life would have been a little tougher without that.

St. Andrew's has obviously had a huge impact on me in many ways. The experience that I have gained in the classroom or in my sports commitments will be with me for the rest of my life. I have learned a great deal of valuable things at St. Andrew's College and I hope to be able to apply what I have learned to where ever I go next.

The things from St. Andrew's that will remain with me the most are the life long friendships I have made through : boarding two years in Sifton house, playing 1st hockey, soccer, golf and going to everyday school classes. The friends I've made and the times we had are a symbol of something special that will remain with me forever.

Baseball.

Thanks to my parents for making the sacrifices to send me here, I love you and appreciate you for what you've done for me. To Mr. Smith (I know you like Unionville) no words can describe your effect, Mr. Rush for my fundamental development as a football player, to Coach Ackerman and Coach Cameron and their staffs, for furthering my growth as an athlete, Mr. Sommerville - House Master, good looking guy, and guidance. Mrs. Pilieci and Mrs Marsh thank you very much for everthing (especially letting me sneak in late books).

With the friendships I've created over my five years at SAC, I hope to continue them [the Greek, O.J. (he's innocent), Helmut, Mr. Boscobel, the mighty Kenyan, JED, Tuzi, Deanikus, Buff], and for the guys in the lower grades who I may not get the opportunity to meet with as often, I hope that I will be in your happiest and\or craziest memories of your SAC experience. Maybe one day later on in life when you think back, you'll say to yourself "Ya, he was a good guy, who really brought a smile each day; whatever his or my mood was, he made things happier and more optimistic." Hugo Wong (1993-95) — Flavelle House

When I first walked up the winding road to St. Andrew's College I was hesitant and somewhat apprehensive. However, it has been a positive year filled with new and worthwhile experience. I have been grateful to those who have tried to open many new doors for me. My thanks to new friends I have made and to my teachers. A special thanks are in order to my parents who provided this opportunity and to my housemaster. St. Andrew's has been a unique experience. It is one that I will remember fondly in the years to come

My life at St. Andrew's College has been a wonderful roller coaster ride and I must concede that I had my hands up for the entire ride. St. Andrew's College represents more than just a simple independent school with a legacy of tradition; it illustrates the real world with safety devices to ensure that an individual doesn't get off track. At St. Andrew's College I have been able to test out different strategies, attitudes and extracurricular participation so that I can decide who I want to be.

When I entered St. Andrew's College in 1990, I entered into a society which had already been greatly influenced by the success of my preceding brothers. I must thank my parents for providing me the opportunity to attend SAC (not UCC) and for providing the incentive and encouragement I needed to flourish, grow and mature into the person who I am today. Even though I may not always show that I love you guys, I really do; I can't thank you enough. Bro's, I'll be seeing ya at university next year.

A big shout out to the four teacher's who have either influenced my decisions or have relit the flame of interest when it had been extinguished: Mr. Smith, Mr. Walden, Mr. Hiltz and Mr. Arril. I have amalgamated the best of each of you into myself.

There have been many significant friends I have meet along my mountain climb; Chris: Hey life's a bitch, play hard and Jed: Aim high and shoot for the stars. To the rest of you, keep shining on. Just a simple reminder to all those reader's of this grad comment: St. Andrew's College only gives back to you what you give to St. Andrew's College.

Nicknames: Grandfather Fai; Head of the Yam village; Yan Chan; BC Ninja; Little Fai; the killer of G13

Famous Sayings: What a handsome guy; Don't talk to me until you brush your teeth, Scott; You are a tough guy, Ronald; Tim What are you getting in the AP- "Showering".

The weather is cold today. Strangely, the squirrels is everywhere. In the memory, they came out at March last year but they come out at February this year. My classmate Ronald, who lives in Flavelle too, keeps to feed the squirrels everyday. One day afternoon, when I sat beside the windows in Ronald's room, the cracking sound of nuts surprised me outside the window. Then I opened the window, I saw a squirrer in cat size. Isn't it horrible?

In SAC, I must say thanks to Mr Kidney, Mr and Mrs Hiltz(my ESL tutor) and Mr Foy(my housemaaster). They give me a lot of advices in my studies. I must say a special " Thanks" to Mr Galajda (My first year tutor),he taught me to face the Language problem in my first year studies in Canada!? At SAC, I learn many things, it is not only in knowledge, it is also in mental like "a student can say impossible to finish a job". It has been useful years since I was born.

Its so easy to examine the past and say, 'Boy I wish I'd done things differently!' but in reality, we all have to look to the future. No, I didn't become a scholar or a Prefect, etc. but I have things to look forward to; failing at university - at least I can still become a politician afterward. Seriously though, the world is still waiting out there with tones of opportunities.

To all those I'm leaving behind - SD, DR, JM, AE, JH, CA, DB, SF and Parry - thanks. Its rare to meet good friends. All of you guys (and any I forgot) stick together and give me a call anytime.

As for GC, RB (I know you don't drink), JN (#1 Indonesian), CW, MW, TK and all the other grade 13's, keep in touch. You guys made life at SAC great. Without friends, Saint Andrew's couldn't exist. Good luck with university.

I would like to thank the exceptional teachers of Saint Andrew's. Mr.Timmes, Mr.Ray and all of my other teachers - you have made this last year outstanding. Never retire; Saint Andrew's will never be the same without you. Most especially I would like to thank my parents for being there and sticking it out for seven years of hell and sacrifice. One line in a yearbook isn't enough to thank you (don't think I'm buying the MG for you though, mom!). I know prize day will be a relief for you (and me).

A brief summation of my life at St. Andrew's College would be impossible. The development of my character exceeds description. Therefore, I will say what must be said; nothing more.

I must acknowledge the teaching staff for their unequaled practise, and my parents for their understanding, guidance, care, and money. Thanks go to my friends for their friendships, and to my enemies for their enmity. Most of all, I would like to thank myself for getting out of here.

To those colleagues who are also graduating, I offer the following advice: "Unless we come apart and rest awhile, we may just come apart."

Cadet Inspection

1995 05 08

Gentlemen Cadets
#142 St. Andrew's College Highland Cadet Corps.
Aurora, ON
L4G 3H7

Dear Cadets,

The consensus is that the Annual Inspection of Saturday past was one of the best ever. On behalf of the Headmaster and my colleagues I want to extend to you my compliments and thanks for a job well done.

Our Reviewing Officer in his remarks to the Corps made reference to our highly interconnected world. At the stroke of PC key one is in touch with people around the world, literally at the speed of light. But even though we are connected we are still essentially alone and anonymous. In preparing for the Church Parade, the Headmaster's Parade and the Annual Inspection you had to function as a group, work together to achieve a goal. It may not have been your number one goal in life but it is to your credit that you supported it and brought it to fruition. And there was nothing lonely or anonymous about all this. Daily you saw evidence that we humans have not yet evolved to a perfect state but you managed to rise about our flaws.

Working together as a team is a very important aspect of life. Many of you have done this in sports, albeit on a much smaller scale. On Saturday you demonstrated that teamwork knows no limits.

Today we celebrate the 50th anniversary of V.E. Day. This was a very special parade this year for a lot of people as you perhaps inferred from Major General Rapmund on Saturday.

Once again my thanks for all your efforts. I am immensely proud of what you accomplished.

Kindest regards,
Geoffrey Smith

Civility is Dissapearing

by Robert Burke

CIVILITY IS DISAPPEARING -- WHAT AN UNCIVIL THOUGHT!

Incivility is rife. A bomb explodes in Oklahoma. A man goes on trial for raping and killing teenage girls. A squadron of the Canadian Airborne Regiment disbands after videotapes expose their 'hazing' rituals. We seem to put great emphasis on the negative in the media; perhaps we should call it the "bad news"? We have become desensitized to the 'bad', expecting yet another tragedy when we turn on the evening news. We are no longer shocked by perversity -- or are we?

Every act of incivility seems to be returned by countless acts of civility. We hear the names of the murderers, but what about the people who are putting their lives on the line to benefit mankind. What of the doctors and medical staff fighting the Ebola virus in Africa, aware of the imminent danger to their lives? The hundreds of volunteers, most nameless, who helped in the rescue effort after the Oklahoma disaster? The media has the opposite effect -- it makes us aware of the incivility that exists around us and encourages us to perform civil deeds. Without the mass media, the world would never have learned of Ethiopia's plight and lent a helping hand. We wouldn't have heard the story of the Canadian Airborne Regiment and forced the government to respond to the outrage.

Indeed, we can no longer hide atrocities. Those who claim we no longer have the capacity to be shocked by violence need only look to Tianoman Square. There, the media exposed the uncivil acts of the Chinese government for the world to see. Nothing could have acted as a stronger deterrent to future incivility. Naysayers purport that our society is becoming one that condones incivility, but our reaction to these recent crises suggests that the opposite is true.

To assert that civility is decreasing would imply that we were more civil in the past. This is difficult to demonstrate. My parents can remember a time when apartheid and segregation were the norm. Some thirty years ago, the beaches of Toronto were adorned with signs reading, "No Jews Allowed". Not many decades before that, slavery was an accepted fact of life in the United States. In Feudal times, outsiders were beheaded, or hung by a hook through to their abdomen over the castle wall. We have moved into an era of increased civility -- an era in which we are tolerant enough to make exceptions to the Sikh community, allowing them to maintain their heritage while taking part in our RCMP. The walls are falling down; literally, in Berlin. The Russians were the `bad guys'; now they're our friends.

Perhaps the people who feel society is falling apart at its uncivil seams are having an experience much like Plato. In his time, Plato condemned the youth for being lazy and arrogant. Plato was neither the first nor the last to express sentiments like these. Either society has been falling apart over the past several thousand years (in which case I marvel at the Utopia Plato lives in), or every generation has looked with disdain at their offspring's behaviour. Perhaps what we accept as "courtesy and politeness" has changed. Although they certainly aren't barometers of civility, Ann Landers and Miss Manners have, time and again, adjusted their position on civility issues. We may loosen our reigns on what may have been considered unacceptable language, but tighten our grip over issues of prejudice. Ironically, our tendency to resist change has resulted in a backlash against "political correctness", which may more properly be described as a heightened awareness and respect for the feelings of others.

In the song, "Healing Hands", Canadian musician and singer Alan Frou sings that "These are the times, these are the days when everyone helps, and everyone prays". We haven't lost our civility; on the contrary, humans have developed a heightened sense that incivility exists, and have stepped up their struggle against it. The outrage we express when we see incivility in the mass media has precipitated many changes that direct us towards increased civility. Should we continue to fight against the lack of civility in society, we will find ourselves moving towards M. Scott Peck's world, where we remember the "glory of what it means to be human".

Her World
by Matthew Rook

Carrying herself through the fields
looking upward into the stars looking into her world.

She lays herself upon me, her hair flapping in the wind. Is she an angel?
Do I love her?

As I leave passing through the gates
my mind switches back into reality.
Looking back, the rolling hills are fading, lights are getting brighter. The car stops. I get out.

As I look out my window looking into the sky, wishing on a star I think of her and her world. Is she thinking of me?

She's leaving. Walking through the trees into the field, she disappears. A cold shiver runs through my body. Will I ever see her again?

Rubbing my eyes, the magical sleeping dust falls to the ground. It's time for breakfast.
As the sun and the moon trade places and the days go by I ask myself, will I ever be a part of her life? Of her world?

The Question
by Paul Etherington

Lasting feelings for that special someone,
Out comes your true self.
Valued possessions seem worthless,
Eyes for only one.

Or is it?

Living in an uncertain dream,
Understanding that the taste will not last.
Standing clear from commitment,
Thoughts are not always what they seem.

Arts & Lit

The 1995 edition of our annual festival of the arts, FOCUS, showed, yet again, that the arts are an essential part of school life.

Throughout the second week of May more than a hundred and fifty students produced a variety of projects - plays, recitals, readings, concerts, and art exhibits. These student performances have given many of the students their first artistic experience and allowed them to discover talents they never knew they had.

Some of this year's highlights included: the hilarious performances of Brad Cowan as a construction worker and Kevin Hurley as his girlfriend in Schuberts Last Serenade; Howard Ng's brilliant new comedy-drama, Cinema Verte, a dazzling hybrid of Quentin Tarantino and David Mamet, which featured riveting performances by Milton Barns and Dean Husseini - a fitting swansong to their illustrious dramatic carers at SAC; Tony DeCarli and Aaron Styling's memorable performances in the lower school remake of a beloved classic, the Prodigal Son; David D'Alessandro's brilliant production of Mere Mortals, an inventive new comedy which eavesdrops on a lunch hour on a girder fifty storeys over the street as three construction workers, played with full comic affect, by Vito Pilieci and Scott McKenzie and David D'Alessandro, share amazing secrets of their past; and finally there was the superb production, beautifully acted by Ian Jones and Carl Zank of The Philadelphia, an off-beat comedy about a young man who has fallen into a twighlight-zone state of existence.

In the cabaret, David Dunlap, Julian Battistion and Tim Rabnet, to name just a few, cocooned us with haunting evocative and melodic guitar explorations of standards and originals, while Rob Burke, John Hood and surprise comedy star Andrew Hodges gave new meaning to the word loony!

Again, this year, we were fortunate to have performances and workshops by renowned visiting artists such as Alegra Fultin, Anna Farquharson, John Broone, David Ramsden and Kurt Swinghamer. There was even, on the last night of the cabaret a surprise appearance by Inferna, Mistress of the Dark.

All in all, Focus was a huge success this year which reaffirmed and celebrated the central place all of the arts occupy at our school.

HammeringHearts

by Paul Etherington

Emotions stirred as they entered the bedroom. There was an understanding between the two that made for a more comfortable atmosphere. Embracing, his body melted against hers. She shivered as she felt his lips on her neck - sending ripples of desire through her loins. Masterfully undressing her, he gazed with weight at her slim-hipped figure. He picked her up like a child, and laid her on the bed. Her beauty was so fragile yet her innocent poise was deceiving. He now stood naked at the side of the bed, looking directly down at her. Their hammering hearts echoed in the silence of the night and as their eyes met he fell onto her. She could feel her cheeks begin to burn, and as his body met hers she could not speak, only a faint moan left her lips . Slipping his tongue into the hollow of her belly, their energy boiled off one another like smoke. His fingertips traced a heart on the trembling flesh of her inner thigh, and travelled south where she was warm with apprehension. A stable rhythm lasted through the night, and breathless sighs of pleasure vibrated through the smooth, silky sheets. Lust had turned to love, as the two became one.

Under 16 Football

1994 was a rebuilding year for U16 football. Opening day saw close to fifty eager candidates, many who were new to the game. The four coaches attempted to keep all those who wanted to learn, and a great deal of individual attention was offered. This enabled the players to show good progress over the season. The younger, smaller players who had two or three more years at this level, realized they were learning for next season. With over three quarters of the team returning, next season should be most encouraging.

This season the older, more experienced teams, many using six or more over-age players, had little difficulty handling SAC. However our team rose to the occasion against Appleby U16's winning 3 - 0 in a defensive battle, where the defense score two of the three points. Against a UCC U15-16 team which was comparable to us, we won 42-36 scoring by the long bomb on the final play of the game.

There were many who showed great individual progress during the season. The entire team had great courage, never quitting or showing fear against the bigger opponents. This was typified by our MIP, Alex Gawell, a thirteen year old linebacker weighing 110 pounds, taking on all opposition, some up to 200 pounds, with tenacity. The MVP was Jeff Thompson, our punter and running back. Jeff led by example, arriving early to practice to work on his skills and giving one hundred percent at all times.

Under 16 Volleyball

U16 Volleyball had a very successful season winning 10 games and losing only 1. After the early bird tournament at which the team went undefeated, this young team (4 of the 6 starters eligible to play at this level again next season) honed their skills through daily practice. A key priority was to develop a number of new players and thus strengthen the bench. Highlights of the season included back to back straight set wins against UCC and a come from behind victory against HTS winning 3 to 2. The end of the season tournament hosted by SAC was disappointing for the team. While we did not make it to the semi finals as expected, the team provided many dramatic moments coming back from a 13 to 3 deficit only to lose 15 to 13 to Royal St George and thus finish the season.

This year's U14 volleyball team had an exceptional season. The boys remained undefeated throughout preliminary play and right through to the finals in the ISAA. U13 Soccer — Captains: Jason Williams, Nick Cafaro

Offensively this was one of the best U13 teams in recent years. We had a front line that could score goals led by our two captains. Defensively, however, we were less than reliable. On our good days we showed we could play head to head with the best teams in our division from across the country, but on the ordinary days, we failed to live up to our potential.

We beat Appleby twice, Ridley twice, and St. George's two games out of three. In the National CIS tournament we beat teams from Victoria, B.C. and from Winnipeg and we lost to the eventual champions, Lower Canada College From Montreal by a 2 - 0 score after a close fought game.

The team that gave us the most trouble was Upper Canada. We split the first two games with them and They took the third. Overall this was certainly a respectable season with 12 victories out of the 20 games that we played. Many boys showed real improvement; especially Chris Claxton and Jonathan Mitchell. Our most valuable player was our centre half Paul Perrier. When he was fit and on the field, we were a tough team to beat. -R.J. Ray

U14 Soccer — Captain: Mike Palmer

Goals Against 17

With the inspirational leading goal scorer, Mike Palmer as captain, the U14's looked strong from day one. It was a happy team and one which posted impressive numbers throughout the season. We lost on the first day of the season and unfortunately twice on the final day. In between we were unbeatable winning 11 games and tying 2. This success included a worthy tournament win at Hillfield-Strathallan College in mid-season, with Palmer scoring 7 goals in three games.

The most Improved Player award was shared between Daniel Thorne and Brian Chisholm. Four boys deserved the Most Valuable Player award: In goal Jason Kaptyn with his great hands, on defense Ian Sinclair with his strength and size, at midfield the tireless and skilful Yamato Yoshioka, and at striker, 17 goal wonder Mike Palmer. But like the academy Awards there could only be one winner, and that was Yamato Yoshioka. Special thanks to our overage import, David Carter, for his skilled enthusiasm. Thanks for a great season!

Under 16 Soccer

This year's U16 soccer team was definitely one of the strongest seen in recent years. With a record of 13 wins and one loss, that being to UCC 9 - 8 on their football field, the team, like last year, was looking ahead to the ISAA to be held at St. Andrew's.

The big day arrived and after wins against RSG twice and Appleby, we were in the final against UCC, where we emerged victorious by a score of 2 - 0.

Gerald Li in goal, Greg Ho, Alex Wood, Jason Perrier, and Ricky Leung were some of the reasons our defence was one of the most solid I have seen. Chris Fusco as captain demonstrated fine leadership on and off the field, ably assisted by Keith Dadson. Keith, along with Dan Ginou, Mark Landry and Mario Alvirez provided a very potent scoring punch.

A midfield player has the toughest assignment of anyone on a soccer team - Luis de la Pena and Stephen Gainey did a highly commendable job.

My thanks to all the boys for a tremendous season.

Under 15 Soccer Captain: Greg Meuser

The team enjoyed a season of 6 wins, 4 losses and 1 tie. We had competitive games against UCC and Ridley, but lost twice to a weaker Appleby team. Such results characterized the team's inconsistency, in spite of much hard work.

The captain, Greg Meuser, was a strong, tireless player - a good example to the others, and our MVP. Mark Gooderham and Jeremy Pedder were acrobatic in goal, and increasingly confident in leaving the line. Jordan Wilson had an excellent season in defence, and Ben Hew, Alan Leung and Matt Word played intelligently and calmly. Andrew Weedon, Budd Matheson and Alex Borgo competed strongly for the ball and improved their distribution in midfield. In attack we were not always sufficiently goal-hungry, though Daryl Evans, Tomas Himer and Leon Nakagawa - our most skilful player (MSP) - often beat defences and threatened to score.

My thanks to these and all the others who contributed to an enjoyable season

JR Squash - ISAA Champs!

This year the junior squash team was comprised of 22 players. With the help of Mr. Timms, the team focussed on improving the fitness and skill aspects of the game. Through hard work and dedication the team proved to be a force to be reckoned with early on in the season. In the final ISAA tournament each school is represented by its top seven junior players. This year they were: A. Dougall, A. Wong, A. Leung, D. Choi, B.Kwok, B. Hew, and A. Haque.

SAC made their way to the finals by easily defeating each of Ridley, TCS and Appleby 7 -0. The final, against UCC, proved to be quite exciting as three of the seven matches were tied at 2 matches each! In the end SAC triumphed byh winning those three close matches - and three others thus defeating UCC 6 -1.

U14 Hockey Captain: Scott Murdock

The story of this year's under 14 hockey season was one of great successes and heart breaking disappointments.

As our season started in November, one glaring deficiency became obvious, we had no goaltender. This problem was to occupy our minds for most of the pre-season, but the improvement of first year goalie Tom Haney and the spirited play of several of our most talented athletes, who took turns between the pipes quickly solved our dilemma. MVP Yamato Yoshioka and Robbie Carter assumed most of the goal keeping responsibilities and Scott Murdock, Ian Sinclair, Thomas Long, and Andrew McNabb took turns in net. They all played very well and learned what it feels like to be the last line of defense - a valuable and memorable experience.

Throughout the season, UCC proved to be our toughest competition.. Along the way we dominated all of our other opponents and finished the regular season with a record of 13 wins and 2 losses.

Any record of such a season of highlights would have to include our two victories over Upper Canada at their own tournament. The first of these victories coming on a memorable afternoon at Maple Leaf Gardens and the second, the next day, in the Championship game of the UCC tournament where the team played determined hockey with Scott Murdock scoring a hat trick in a 7-4 victory. In addition, we traveled to Buffalo to defeat the always tough Nichols school, 8-4. That same weekend we faced another opponent, the Depew Saints and defeated them 4-2 thanks to a timely goal scored by MIP Greg Thompson.

This team was one of the most talented Under 14 squads the school has ever had. Offensively the team was led by the face off skills and fore checking of centres Scott Murdock and Nick Mennen, the goal scoring punch of Yamato Yoshioka and Robbie Carter, and the play making of Paul Perrier and Brian Chisholm. On defense, two of our better forwards, Jason Kaptyn and Tom Long chipped in to help the two acknowledged leaders, Ian Sinclair and Alex Naghi.

We entered the season-ending tournament at Appleby as the prohibitive favorites. Unfortunately we were unable to fulfill our goals losing to our old nemesis UCC in the Semi-final game. Even this loss could not hide the fact that this was a truly great team.

The coaches would like to congratulate and thank all those who participated this year and especially the leadership shown by captain Scott Murdock and assistants Brian Chisholm and Alex Naghi. On behalf of the team we would also like to thank the parents who so graciously supported us win or lose and especially Mr. Thompson for his generous team dinner at the Hot Stove and Mr. Murdock for the photographs given to every player to keep the memories of this exciting season alive. -gs/sr

The U16 hockey team was, for the most part, an under 15 team with only 3 players over the age of 14. So at the beginning of the season, not a lot was expected. Mid-season call ups to 1st, the retirement of players for academic reasons and injuries made the task of winning even more difficult. With hard work and the dedication of the players who stuck it out, they developed into one of the three top ranked teams in the league. Because there are so many returnees next year the expectations for success are very high.

Thank you and good luck to captains Jason Perrier, John Lowes and mid-season acquisition Mike Laceby, whose leadership this year was needed in the dressing room and on the ice

This year's U14 basketball team had its ups and downs. The team started its season with a 70 -67 point loss to Appleby College. Later in the season we had a good series with Ridley College. We beat them in the first game; however in our second meeting they beat us by 15 points. After that we never lost to them again defeating them by 25 points in the tournament. The team played great offense;on a few occasions they scored over 65 points. Erik Yamada and Michael Wolf were key reasons for those high scoring games. Ricky Luk and Mike Palmer were excellent on defense.

The team went into the final tournament ranked fourth overall and played in the consolation round where we won by defeating Sterling Hall and Ridley College. The team would like to thank Mr. Somerville for all his time and effort in making it a great season. - Jason Cheung

This year's U15 basketball team turned out to be a team full of surprises. One by one each member of the team seemed to find the niche for himself where he could make the biggest contribution. Strengths were discovered where we never knew they existed and leaders blossomed where self-consciousness had prevailed. These players developed a tremendous amount of respect for each other and for the game. Congratulations to our MVP Leon Nakagawa who lead by example and to our MIP Albert Tsai who turned from mouse to lion. While we lost in our pool at the final tournament, team members should be as proud of their improvement as their coaches are. Special thanks to Coach Ken Ryan for volunteering his time, energy and expertise to our cause.

Although 1995 was a "developing year" for the downhill ski team, the team did have its highlights, such as Edward Mercer finishing the first race on one ski after falling half-way down the course and the bus getting lost on the way to one of the races. The championships held at Blue Mountain finished with two racers Brook Dyson (2nd) and Will Mercer (3rd), in the top three helping the junior team come a surprising but well deserved second place. The senior team did not fair so well but at the championships it had two racers in the top ten, Edward Mercer (4th) and Gregg Berdette (9th), while the team finished a distant sixth place. With a lot of the junior racers moving up next year, the hopes for the senior team are flying high. The junior MVP went to Brook Dyson and the senior MVP was awarded to Edward Mercer. The senior MIP award was given to Gregg Berdette and the junior was given to Rob Gray.

Under 16a Rugby

This year found a new alignment in the rugby world as the old Under 15 and Under 17 sides were replaced with two teams, Under 16A and Under 16B. The former team was comprised of experienced players, many of whom would join forces with the Under 17 members of the Tier II team to form an Under 17 side when required. The Under 16B team was made up of players who were of Under 15 age. Now that the table of organization has been dispensed with, more about the season.

Members of both teams are to be congratulated. Players worked hard in practice and gave their best in every match. Lots of new skills were acquired and it is obvious that there is a formidable pool of talent waiting in the wings for the First XV a couple of years down the road.

Coaches Clements, Harper, and Smith thank all players for their effort and dedication.

Lacrosse — Captain: Grame Martine

After a disappointing 1994 season cut short by a strike and a number of key players graduating, the Saints' Lacrosse team set to rebuild its program based upon youth and enthusiasm. With the help of a new coach, Mr. Robson, Todd Pepper, an old boy, the largely new team built itself into a very respectable adversary. Led by Captain G. Martin and MVP F. Perowne our scoring ability increased dramatically as did our overall team play. Newcomers R. Gervais and MIP A. Churchill were able to put aside their frustrations of a new sport to become starters. Our ball boys, Chappele, Carter, and Paulson, complemented our game by yelling ball position and defensive strategy to our players. Injured players J. DeCarli and K. Brown were also a strong presence at games and practices. With a returning squad of 15 or so players and new jerseys and shorts, we will certainly be a major competitor in York Region next year. As one of the York Region coaches remarked about his team's playoff chances: "I'd rather be playing Bayview than that SAC team. They'll be the ones to watch next year!"

Grade 12

One Year To Go

by Chris Abraham

As we are on the verge of completing our secondary school career, the pace quickens. Those of us taking OAC courses already feel the impact of the increasing work load. We must turn our focus more on what lies ahead and what we must do to reach our long term goals.

Students are begining to realize their academic strengths in grade 12 and each indicidual shifts into more specialized fields of study, from the sciences and mathematics to the arts. The road to University is truly beginning, reinforced by vistis to several campuses during expansion week.

Out on the playing fields competition for membership of First teams is fierce, each of us wanting the honour of representing SAC at the premier level. At the same time, our last years of SAC extra-curricular activites are upon us, so we strive to make the most of debating, school plays, cadets and so on... The key skill now is to take advantage of all that SAC has to offer while still keeping our marks up!

Grade II Life - by Brad Livingstone

For some of us, we came into this year expecting it to be like any other. But as the year progressed, we came to realize just how important this year would be to our success later on in life. We have seen how not selecting a course can shut all sorts of doors for pursuits in University. We have seen how important the academic side of our stay at SAC really is. No longer is school relaxing as it may have been in the years past, it is now tough. At times, teachers may spring impossible commbinations of tests, assigments and various other surprise's on us.

However, the year has been all work and no play. We have seen members of our grade have great success both in class and on the playing field. We have managed to survive various activities, suffered toghther on the playing fields, and most importantly, work toghther toward the challenge of tommorow.

Into The Senior School

by Anonymous

Grade ten marks a change for many of us here at SAC, it is the first year we are considered to be a part of the senior school. Many of these changes we expected, but many more we did not.

I think we all expected that we would be changing houses with the new year, and that we would be participating in the senior level for the inter house competition, but I know that I did not realize just what this meant. It never occurred to me that because we were now at the senior level, we would have to do such things as run the longer cross-country run, or sing louder in the carol service.

Aside from the extra stuff that surrounds us here at SAC, there is always the school work. No one ever warned me that grade 10 would require more work than grade nine. The projects are larger and the tests are harder. But on the other hand I now get the choice of which classes I want to take. This means I'm taking the classes that interest me, rather than sleeping through the classes that bore me. I guess this is the first step in achieving the much talked about space.

Grade ten is a nice start into the senior school, but I am looking forward to next year, when I will be one step further up the ladder, and fifty minutes closer to having the day off.

My Grade 9 Year

by Antoine Grondin

I'm in grade nine, it's my first year here at SAC. People said that high school would be a huge change in my life. They were right. It's pretty strange being one of the small and younger guys in the school again. Don't get me wrong, it's not all bad.

Being in high school gives you a feeling of being in a higher calss. For example you can stay up longer on school nights watching TV, meeting girls (and going out with them!), you can go places without your parents, do things that you would normally have to ask permssion to do. Your parents trust you because you're older and more mature.

Grade 9 here at SAC gave me those feelings and more; different way of living, new friends, more homework (but great teachers!), and a sense of direction in life. High school seems great so far and I hope it goes well all the way

This is my second year here at SAC, and I'm starting to understand the way works here. The idea behind ers, how to get them, and how to get out of them. It is now a little clearer to me why we have to stay in our rooms and study each night, rather than work when we feel like it. Last year I thought there must be a reason for such and such, and this year I realize what it is.

In the last two years, SAC has helped me in many ways. I have formed certain study habits, but more importantly I have formed many great friends. Boarding here, I have to live with the people I like, as well as the people I don't, but by doing so, I learn how to live with everyone. SAC is were my friends are, and I hope this will be true over the next five years.

My First Year
by Anonymous

This is my first year at SAC, and when I got here, I did not know what to expect. I had never been away from home to go to school, and I had never gone to a school for boys only. So far, everything seems to be ok, I have made new friends, and am finding school life to be not bad. My only complaint so far is the food, if my mom had told me about this, I would not have agreed to come. Other than that, ers are always fun, but I guess the threat of them helps keep me out of trouble.

I've been told that things will change as I progress through the grades, but for now, I am happy with the way things are.

This year it is the turn of the Assistant Housemaster to put the past year in review. My mind is at once filled with a flood of conflicting emotions. For me this has been a wonderful opportunity and it has been a privilege to assist Michael Hanson in running what must be the liveliest and largest residential location on campus. Some look at their Mac House time as a necessary evil, to be endured and put behind them. To others it is the critical period of orientation to their new status as Andreans, a period that colours and prepares them for everything that follows. My apartment is in the midst of the action, surrounded as I am by eighty-five boys of varying ages and levels of maturity. I can't help but think for a moment of those who made my life difficult by their immaturity and lack of consideration for the rights of others. But let me put that aside and concentrate instead on another kind of young man, a boy between the ages of eleven and fifteen, one who is courteous, positive, trusting and determined to have good clean fun. This breed of student, and happily there were many of them in "Mac Shack", was busy, happy and cheerful. He was even able to forgive the incomprehensible instances of theft or vandalism that came to try us more often than we care to admit. We are thankful for all the boys in the House who fitted this description.

The grade eights' water polo victory over their day boy counterparts in Laidlaw House was an auspicious start to a wonderful year athletically. Fifty-two of our students played on representative sports teams during the year and of these, twenty-two played on teams in all three terms. Nick Cafaro deserves special mention for once again winning the Junior Cross Country, this time in a dead heat with a provincially ranked triathlete, Daniel Wells.

Many people provide the Housemasters with valuable assistance in making the environment more civil for everyone, and deserve to be thanked individually. While this is impossible Mr. Hanson and I would like to mention just a few. To those House Captains who were punctual and caring for the younger charges, you have my sincerest thanks. To Kai Brown and Lawrence Sim, our two grade thirteen Heads of House, thank you for your input and genuine concern for the well being of the students. We are deeply indebted to you. It seems to us that Mac House Duty Masters are a special breed; most wish to do their duty here and nowhere else. Some like Mr. Ray have been in our house for the best part of three decades! Finally, special mention must be made of our wonderful Matron, Mrs. Patricia Ham who is retiring to her school house home in Blyth after close to twenty years of devoted service. It is hard to imagine someone else attending to the multitude of small tasks as she has done over the years. Her departure leaves a great void in the house which we hope that someone will come along to fill. Thank you, Mrs. Ham!

Each year we recognize certain Macdonald House clan members or residents for their particularly meritorious achievements. These are the worthy recipients of the honours announced on Prize Day:

There are two prestigious sports prizes: The Ladies' Guild Award for the outstanding athlete in grades seven and eight; this went to Ian Sinclair. And the Ronald L. MacMillan Award presented to the best athlete in grade nine; this went to Yamato Yoshioka. What a year Yoshi had! We wish him and all the other departing grade nines the best of luck as they continue their careers in the Upper School.

In the opinions of Mr. Hanson and myself, not to have lived in Macdonald House deprives a St. Andrew's student, no matter how distinguished, of an unforgettable and unique experience that goes right to the heart of what it means to be an Andrean.

Cheers cobbers and G'day to you all!

"Carnage".

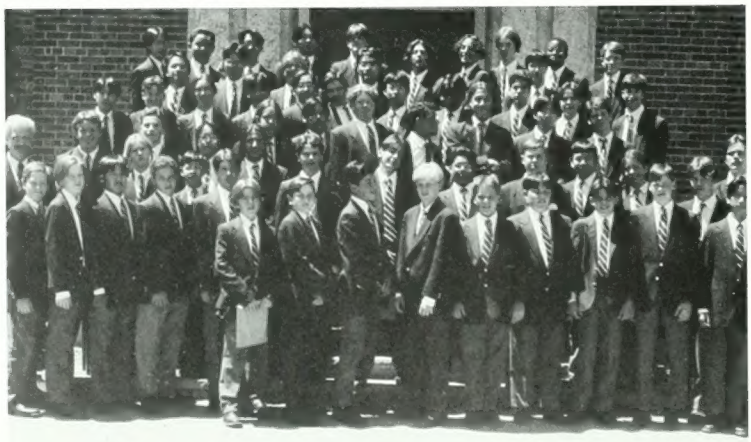
Macdonald House



Laidlaw House surpassed all previous records with 74 young men in this grade seven through nine dayboy house. Under the leadership of Matt Wettlaufer and Jeremy Pedder and our twelve housecaptains (Jason, Dave, Scott, Blair, Sean, Matt, Jameel, Mike, Andrew, Chris and Steve) we all enjoyed an outstanding year. Some highlights include our now famous water polo games against the boarders, our steak BBQ, our toques and baseball caps, new SNES and Genesis systems and games, the tug of war at Mayfest, and our trip to Lazer Quest. Thanks to all who helped to make this such a memorable year.

Flavelle House

It was an eventful, and different year, marked by the anomaly of two Heads-of-House and the strength of the graduating class. The house was filled with 72 people from over fifteen different countries. It was a place where no one slept and everyone knew your name. Flavelle hosted the largest noodle-brewing population of the school. Fun-filled with Lymburner's constant and innovative insights into our housemeetings, Biggar's feet, Munjews pennies, Bitter-Jan's complaints, tapes of Mottley's thundering roars during naps, third floor hockey, Somers' slingshot, push-ups in the shads, Betty, roof suntanning, ultimate frisbee, super-soakers, late-night/early morning talks about nothing, Choada's wind disturbances (at will), a Great Dane, and a grump 'ol bear, plus... we had Joyo, again!

The house was peaceful and quiet until Lux II entered the house, for a final term of fun despite what he says. To top off a great year we won Best Company in Cadets, the best Cadet, and Track and Field Day. Congratulations. To Mr. Foy, the heart of the house, (who keeps saying that he got the year off?) and the Masters and Mistress, thank you for a job well done. Until next year...

(Co-Heads-of-House)

A not so fictitious letter to a friend;

Dear Bud,

Another year just blew by. It seems things just keep getting busier and more hectic around Sifton House and that's just fine.

We try to keep busy whether that means hiding in the closets so Mr.K. won't catch us skipping chapel or our first period (or two, or three... Right Rhudra); or working hard at keeping our rooms neat, tidy and organized like Gainey and Tremaine's and Long and Churchill's rooms (boy, Nancy's glad summer came!)

Some of us work hard at break, trying to get across the quad for a smoke without getting caught or visiting Dean's third floor smoke emporium. It's tough making sure the butts and the smoke go out the window. Other's just resort to getting caught lighting up behind the house with the Russians on a daily basis.

At lunch, a few find it extremely difficult to get into town for pizza or to "Charlies" for soup, sandwich and a butt in the time allotted. The shortened lunch time made a little more difficult but we managed.

After school some of us were very disciplined at avoiding the sports programme and house league, especially when "Doom" is calling. Some use this time for sleep catch-up, hanging around and practising with the third floor rave D.J. Society.

Study was tough because we had to stay in our rooms for half of it but after that we had all sorts of excuses for visiting guys in other houses or the computer lab. We needed this time to organize our weekend party. After study was our time; catch some T.V. Hang out, zoom into town, play some B. Ball in the gym, a little Doom, definitely no home work.

Bedtime was temporary -check in at 11:00pm wait a while so Mr. K. won't suspect then check out and hang out. Slurpie runs, visit Clarkie's all night hang out room, head over to Flavelle, find out where Randy, Ian, Kevin, Rhudra, Ambrose, Tom, Herbert and Charlie disappear until 3:00am. Throw a few water balloons and if you had a major project due the next day, start working on your excuses.

It was a tough year in Sifton house but rumour has it that it was easier in Flavelle and Memorial.

See you in College, I.M.Gone.

REVIEW

Sifton House

This was a great year for Memorial House. From bi-weekly sleep-in breakfasts to Tuesday sundae nights, all house members were allowed to enjoy some of the finer things in boarding school life. House participation this year was at an all time high, Harry Lyi stepped up to organize all of the House Sports Pools, and senior students were always willing to organize and volunteer their time for different house events.

One of the greatest things about Memorial House is the people within it. As we move on we all take with us the friendships, and the memories we all share. Who can forget the nightly room raids, the garbage can trick, hallway basketball, or zots and water balloons. What about Primo's body sounds, the juice, Sabo being Sabo, Eric's knack for making everyone laugh, Ham and Christian (the family), the night crew playing dominos (Flav, Gillam, Biggs, Rhudra), and subway runs.

A special thanks goes to Mr. and Mrs. Perrier whose interest, dedication, and support make Memorial the greatest home away from home. The house is in extremely good hands as next years co-heads of house are Neil Ritchie and Kevin Hurley. Good luck to all next year.

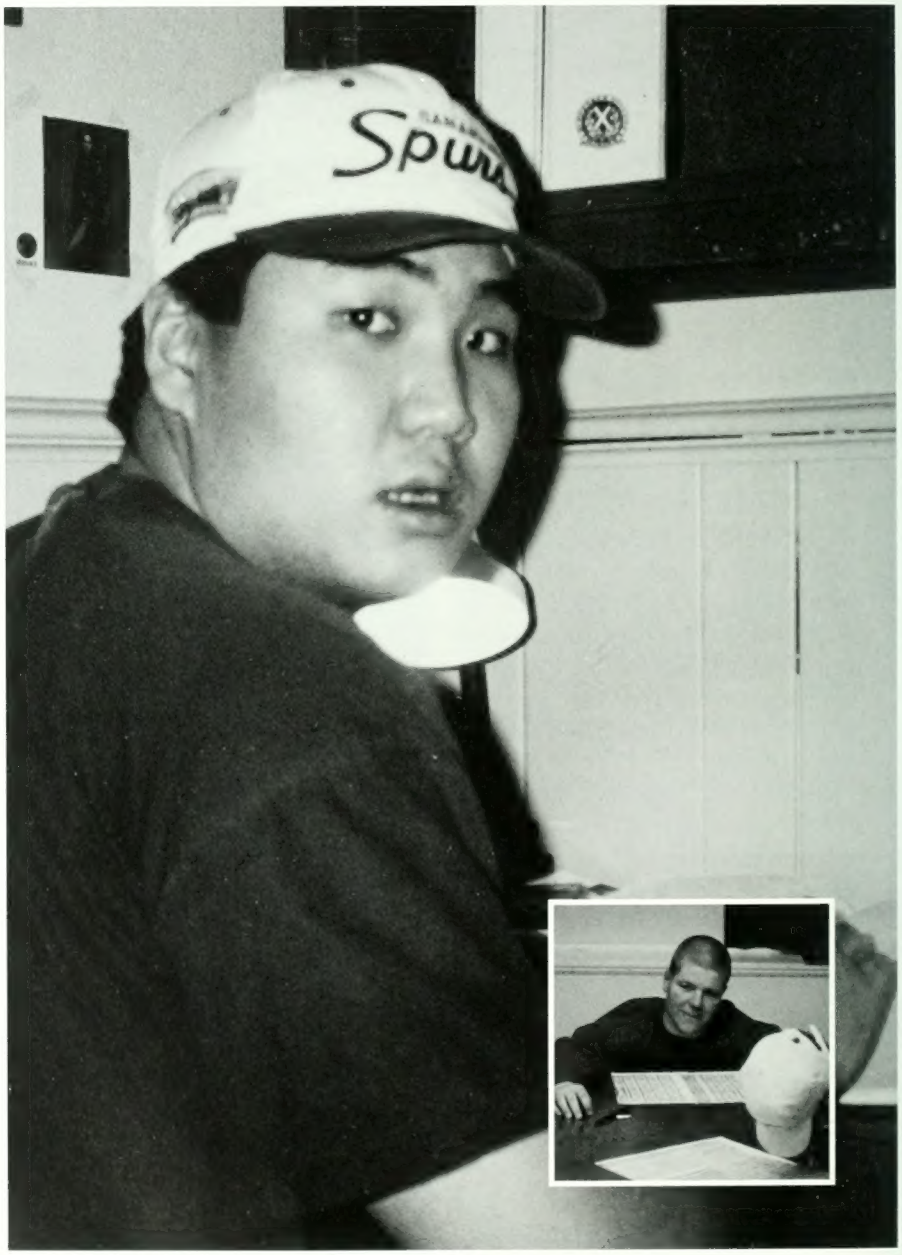
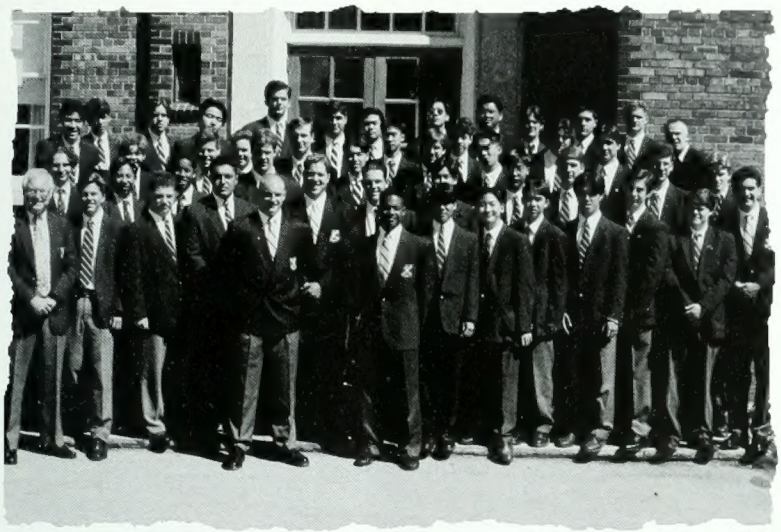
Memorial House





The 1994/95 year was very rewarding for individuals of New House and for the House as a whole. From academics and athletics to cadets and the arts, New House members participated in all areas of school activities. Under the patriarchal leadership of Mr. Somerville and New House Captains, Jed Dadson, Paul Etherington, and Robert Burke, New house had another successful year in Andrean Life.

The members of New House led the way in academics with a large number of the house members who were scholars. Such students as Robert Burke, Chris Abraham, and Ricky Leung led their respective forms in overall academic average. New House also excelled in athletics, members of the house were captains of the soccer, football, hockey, rugby, and the golf teams.

New House placed respectably in the annual October cross-country run and was well represented in the School's play and musical. The entire house took part in the MacPherson Tournament cheering on our hockey team. The house was active in helping to organize and participate in such May events as the Focus Art Festival, Mayfest, and Synergy. The New House common room was the centre of the new sport of foot-hockey, the inaugural season of the IFHL proved to be robust.

In Cadets New House held a prominent role in the Cadet Corps. New House Company was in close competition for the best company led by Capt. Jed Dadson and MWO Mike Young. Two of the three regiment positions were held by members of New House, Lt. Col. Geoff Cattrall and CWO Mark Wilson, were responsible for the training and comportment of the entire Cadet Corps; the end result was a successful year in cadets.

The year's endeavours showed the ability for New House to accept challenges and overcome them.

No man's knowledge here can go beyond his experience" - J. Locke

The entire year was definitely an enlightening experience for New House. Due to these experiences a better house as a whole was the final product. Some houses followed, others had to get out of the way, FOR NEW HOUSE LED.

MARK WILSON

The crew from Ramsey House this year was a truly special group. The main goal of the house was to spend as little time in their own common room as possible. This resulted in many interesting phenomenons, including a house captain who lived in Sifton, was a member of Flavelle and frequently visited the New House common room. Although many of the other house members were not quite as active, most could be found in the New House common room participating in a large variety of activities. The room was big enough to allow for a round of ball hockey when time permitted (almost always), but when the heat was too great, the common room was alive with discussion on the past weekends and any up-coming events.

In the more organized side of the house, the traditional house barbecue took place as usual, although this year we tried something new. This year, Ramsey joined forces with New House in the pooling of funds to allow for more fun to be had by all.

This pooling of funds did not however take away from the competitive edge Ramsey has maintained for many years. Placing well in both the Cross Country Run and Track & Field, as well as many other events, Ramsey gave a strong showing in the final round, placing second over all the boarding houses. In all, it was a great year filled with much excitement and loads of laughs.

PRIZE DAY

P.E. - Mr. Chairman, members of the Board of Governors, Mr. Bedard, members of the faculty, guests, and fellow students. For weeks, people have asked us how we were going to present this valedictory address, well here goes...

It is our utmost privilege to be awarded the honour of addressing you today.....Deke this isn't working. I know this is suspect, why don't we try plan B.

D.B. - For over 96 years St. Andrew's College has stood as a prestigious and acclaimed institution. Students begin the SAC experience as a 13 year old boy merely hoping to make some friends, pass math, and earn that high school degree. However, from the time you enter those gates and set your eyes on the stone statue of Andrew the conversion begins. You learn to understand the importance of friendship both in the classroom and on the sports field. Education becomes a priority and along the road you absorb those distinctive qualities that personify an Andrean - dedicated, trustworthy, honest, and a leader. As the years go by there is a significant growth, both physically and mentally and respect flourishes between both masters and pupils. Finally in grade 13 the conversion is complete and you the student are now a man - ready to face the world, a world beyond St. Andrew's, a world where dreams can be met and success achievable.

P.E. - But today the world outside these gates is one of unknown certainty. Civil war rages in Yugoslavia and U.N. Peacekeepers have been taken hostage, the threat of the AIDS virus is steadily increasing, and millions tune into the daily proceedings of the O.J. Simpson trial. With the advent of computers and technology, our world is changing every day, and the future we now face is much different than that of our parents. However, we have a head start in the game of life, strengthened by the values and traditions that make an Andrean.

D.B. - There is so much more to SAC than assignments and tests. What gives St. Andrew's character is the people within in it. We all take with us the friendships we have made, and the memories we all share. SAC is like "Cheers" in that everyone knows your name. Where else could you have a two hour conversation with a custodian named Blair about jelly-jam jars, and diving whistles. Who can forget the spirit of the students at the Friday night MacPherson hockey game, or the sound of "When the Saints Go Marching On" at the 1st Basketball final. And then there's the graduating class.

P.E. -Brad Cowan's refusal to accept FOCUS as the festival of the arts, Lux and Bob's farm antics, Helmut's fascination with Burger King Whopper's...don't forget the cheese, Bulas' attraction to Mustang's at 3 in the morning, Chuck's obsession for boxes, Eric's love of Cheech & Chong's "Well I'm Sorry Sir," Primo's body sounds, Mike Young's roar, Thursday night at the Barracuda club which was later converted to Graystones due to an increase in prices, and who can forget Lindsay's love for Bill's mop. MEMORIES.....that is what brings Andreans together.

D.B. -The year has flown by, and it seems like only yesterday we were emptying suitcases and receiving time tables for class. At St. Andrew's, the old saying holds true: the more you put into the community, the more you will take when you leave. This was a year full of contribution and participation in the SAC community and beyond. Basketball won the CISAA championship in dramatic fashion, Nordic skiing dominated its league and had a strong showing at OFSAA, and track and field continued its ongoing reign of excellence by winning its sixth consecutive championship. We also managed to assemble a 1st class weight training and cardiovascular facility, and yes it is finally open. In the arts, Othello, The Saloon Keepers' Daughter, and FOCUS provided us with memorable performances. In debating Robert Burke placed 1st in Ontario and was among the best debaters in Canada. We had an unforgettable Homecoming which was topped off by SAC fever and Mayfest transformed SAC into an amusement park almost overnight. Something new this year was a Multicultural Festival that brought cultural communities from all around the world. Sam Levenson summed this festivals theme when he said, "If you want to see brotherhood in action just watch a bunch of high school kids taking a final examination. That is the time when there is no question of race, creed, or colour. There is only one question. Who's got the answer?

P.E. -As the spokepersons for the graduating class of '95 we would like to take this moment to thank those who have made this whole experience possible. To our fellow prefects, your dedication and hard work were not unnoticed - SAC will certainly miss you.

D.B. - To the faculty and staff. Your interest, concern, support, and guidance this year had made our school the most wonderful place in the world. You are the unheralded heroes of SAC who give to us often without any reward, or any notice. This giving has a special quality all to its own, and for this we thank you.

P.E. - Personally, I would like to thank my brothers, Mark and Sean, who paved the path for me, gave sound advice when necessary, inspired me to excel and I am proud to be your brother. I would especially like to acknowledge my parents who made SAC possible. Not only did they help me financially but they provided me with friendship and guidance. Something which will last a lifetime. Thanks Mum and Dad for your support and love. Finally friends, you were always there when I needed you. Whether it was just a pat on the back or the occasional joke to lift my spirits I could always count on the "guys". The friends which I have made at SAC have lasted, in some cases, for seven years - a 1/3 of my life and the memories which have built up are irreplaceable. From rugby matches to bar fights we have all gone through things together. Friendships are very special and can last forever but remember this - friendship is like a bank account, you can't continue to draw on it without making deposits. Treat your friends as you do your prized paintings - place them in the best light.

D.B. - To our families. In this case, I feel as though I am speaking on behalf of the entire graduating class. Thank you Mom and Dad for giving me the opportunity to attend this school. You always gave me the best you could and your hard work has let me receive the finest all round education possible today. You changed my life by sending me here and now it's my turn to repay you.

P.E. - We the grads of '95 will soon be entering the world outside these gates and facing the crossroads of life. Although SAC has prepared us for Manhood - it is up to oneself to make that decision and follow the right path. A path made of principle. A path that will lead to one's own character and integrity. It won't be clear sailing but we must commit ourselves and take the motto to heart and "Quit ye like men be strong". St. Andrew's is a maker of men and the cradle of our society's leaders. Over the years it has shaped, protected and embraced our future and in essence has acted as a lighthouse on life's obscure path.

It is best stated in a song.....

Together -

"Amazing grace how sweet the sound
That saved a wretch like me
I once was lost but now am found
Was blind but now see."

D.B. - One thing a speaker should always remember for sure is that the mind can absorb only what the seat can endure.

P.E. - Teachers, thanks for enduring us, students - best of luck, Prefects make some P.

And finally Grads remember this - Ability may get you to the top but Character will keep you there. PARTY ON Grads!!!

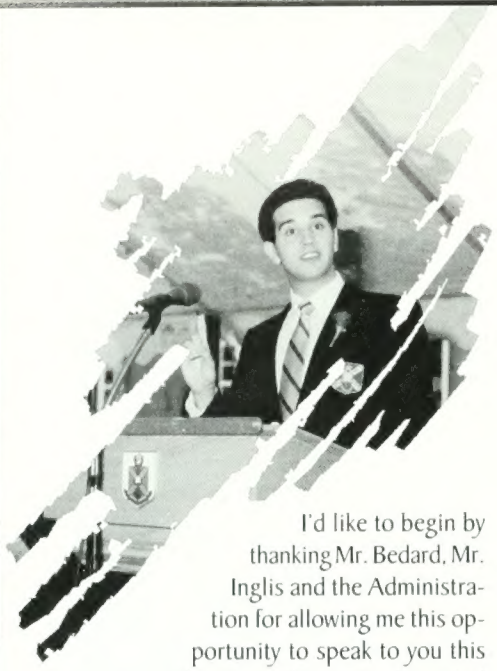
Head-Boy's Speech



I'd like to begin by thanking Mr. Bedard, Mr. Inglis and the Administration for allowing me this opportunity to speak to you this afternoon. The way I really wanted to start my speech, however, was the same way Reverend Arril started his sermon this morning in chapel—"And now for something completely different."

I'm here today to talk with you about the Complete St. Andrew's Education, which is difficult, because it seems to me that the complete education that St. Andrew's provides is unique for every Andrean. But, looking back over my five years at SAC, I can see that the "Complete Education" seems to come in stages, and so that is what I'd like to discuss today—the five stages of a complete St. Andrew's education.

The first stage, of course, is one of total and utter confusion—otherwise known as Lower School. I'm sure most of us Day-boys remember what our first day of school was like. I came onto campus knowing I had to find a building called Dunlap Hall. This didn't seem to pose much of a challenge because the names of the buildings were carved on the buildings themselves. I found Macdonald House... Sifton House... Flavelle House... and then I stumbled across a building called Dvnlap Hall. Dvnlap? I remember thinking, "I thought this school has Scottish heritage, not Norwegian!"

It was eventually explained to me that the guy who was carving the names ran out of U's, and, hoping they wouldn't notice, used a V instead. I hear they stopped him before he spelled "Flavelle House" using four Ms and a silent Q!

So I made my way into Dvnlap Hall and up to the Laidlaw House Common Room to check in. I was instantly impressed. They have an excellent air hockey table in Laidlaw House. We used to get into the most awesome games of air hockey before Chapel. I remember one time when the game got so intense that I smacked the puck, it ricocheted off the table, and bounced right off the head of Mr. Whitehead. That white head very quickly became a red head, and I found myself writing out copies of "The Life of Robertson Laidlaw."

Apparently, the Boarders had a slightly different experience. For two hours every night they were forced to perform a ritual called "Study." This confused me because at the time I couldn't imagine studying for two hours straight. So I asked a few of them what they really did during Study.

"Well, we sleep," one offered.

"We're stuck in our rooms, so we play video games!" another announced.

"Yeah, and we harass the House Captains!"

It all sounds like fun, and almost makes me wish I was a boarder. Total and utter confusion is always fun, but just when we were beginning to enjoy it, the first stage was over and we moved on to the next part of the Complete St. Andrew's Education.

What better place to end a state of total and utter confusion than the Chapel. The "experience" of Chapel really begins to have an effect in grade ten. That's when, for the first time, you begin to feel like you're moving back a bit in the Chapel. You see, the younger guys sit at the front, and as you get older you progress towards the back. Grade ten is the first time when you can stand up tall and really feel like a big guy when you stare down at the grade niners. You pick up your red hymn book, open it up to hymn 157 and your voice cracks as you sing, "[singing] And Did Those Feet, In Ancient Time..."

My apologies; I get so emotional over that song! The other things in Chapel I get emotional about are Reverend Arril's sermons. Especially the ones about Harry. Who is this Harry guy, anyway? Apparently, Harry is a friend of Reverend Arril's. The details about this guy are a bit sketchy. We know he used to own a carpet-cleaning business; that he was once chased by a bear; that he's interested in magic; and that he's spent time in Kingston, and I don't mean at Queen's. I think there's a bit of Harry in all of us. Whether or not we talked about Harry, Chapel was a time to reflect, a time to pray, and a time to think about the day to come—and the homework you forgot to do the night before.

For me, the third stage of the Complete St. Andrew's Education came in grade eleven. Grade eleven was the first time I tried out for the football team. Those of you who know me will remember that it was also the last time I tried out for the football team. I learned what it was like to have 250 pounds of solid muscle come crashing into my cranium as I made a dash for the end zone. I figured my education in this discipline was complete the first time that happened. Some of you actually enjoyed this, and took the gifted program, which lead you towards First Football.

Twelfth grade is where the fourth stage of the Complete Education kicks in. This is when you learn how to do what we computer-people—or geeks, as we're affectionately called—refer to as "multi-tasking." Basically, multi-tasking is the ability to do six things at once, despite the fact you've only got two hands. You never really understand the meaning of the word "multi-task" until you have a debating meeting, a Pipes and Drums practice, extra Calculus help, a sports practice and a play rehearsal—all on the same evening... and, you have two tests to write the next day. Being in grade twelve at St. Andrew's forced me to upgrade my brain to a model that knows how to multitask.

It's a good thing I did, because I was rapidly moving into OAC: the final stage of the Complete Education. And that, of course, is learning how to deal with the wrath of Mr. Smith. Imagine this scenario—a student is approaching Mr. Smith for some help with his Chemistry homework. He doesn't have it done, but he has a good excuse—there was a lot going on last night and all he's asking for is one day. The student comes up to Mr. Smith and says:

"Uh... Sir? ...Sir?"

"What!? Whaddyou want, you dayboy slime?"

"Nice day, isn't it, Sir?"

"Stop dancing around the point! I've had enough Fred Astaire for one day! And take off the hat!"

"S...sorry to bother you, Sir, but, uh..."

"You're not sorry! Sorry is pain! Sorry will come when I shove it in one ear and rip it out the other side!"

"Sir, I don't have my homework done; I've been really busy with debating and..."

"Look. Talking with you is like being dragged behind a manure spreader."

"Sir, all I'm asking for is a day!"

"[sigh] Making you people do work is like pushing a ball of Jell-O uphill... All right."

You see, the Complete Education comes when you realize that beneath Mr. Smith's crusty exterior, there exists a warm, understanding man who is always there to help you out, no matter what you've done.

While those are the five stages, there is one other aspect of the Complete Education that doesn't occur as a stage. It's a constant throughout the St. Andrew's education. In fact, it's so constant that it appeared on all three of my final Physics exams. And that is professionalism.

Mr. Hiltz provides his Physics students with a brilliant set of notes that outline his course. The first thing each grade level receives is the definition of professionalism. The notes say that professionalism is "the concerned attention to all aspects of one's work." It is this professionalism that makes the St. Andrew's Education complete. It is found from the sports field, to the chapel, to the extra help and every aspect of the academics. It is a spirit of compassion, caring, understanding and extra effort that pours forth from the administration and staff. This spirit of professionalism is what truly sets St. Andrew's apart, and convinces me that I have received a Complete St. Andrew's Education.

Well, almost complete.

If I could only figure out how to keep my room clean, make my bed and sort my socks, then maybe, just maybe, I'll be ready for University. Hey! Maybe that's what they learn during Study.

Headmaster's Speech

Mr. Chairman, Members of the Andrean Community,

The passage of time has brought us to the climax of another academic year. For those who toil here, day by day, this is the annual harvest of our labours. For parents, it represents a goal achieved and the challenge of a new relationship with their son. For the graduates, it is a time of mixed emotions. They have worked long and hard for this day and are justly proud; but it is also a time of parting which will bring some pain.

We can safely say that the 94/95 school year has been a productive one, filled with accomplishments by individuals and by groups.

In academics, at the OAC level, we are graduating 27 Ontario scholars, and, for the first time, more than 25% of the entire student body has obtained an average of 80% or more... In our initial attempt at the University of Toronto Biology Competition, we placed 8th out of 277 schools, and, in the York Region for reading and writing at the Grade 9 level, we placed first... Moreover, our students achieved impressive Chemistry and Mathematics results in international examinations.

Individually, we have some striking performances to report... Robert Burke, who will address you in a moment, came first in the Provincial Debating tournament and then was fifth in the National Debating championship. He earned the prestigious Chancellor's scholarship to Queen's, one of 9 students from all of Canada to do so. He completes his year with an average of 96%...Deserving of recognition is Chris Abraham who has been awarded the Oxford summer school scholarship, the third Andrean to receive this honour in the past four years, and Geoff Cattrall who has earned 13 OAC credits-instead of the minimum 6 required - all in the 90% range.

You might have read about " The Love of Learning" report of the Royal Commission on Education in the Province. Once implemented, the recommendations will have a serious effect for all High Schools. For instance, the credit system will be revamped: in order to graduate, a student will need either 21 or 22 credits from grade 10 onward, with 24 credits being the absolute maximum. In effect, grade 13 will disappear. Judging from the present Grade 13, that is quite a shame.

In Drama, we were favoured with an adaptation of Shakespeare's Othello in the Fall under the professional direction of William Scoular. Lee and John Clements produced the delightful Innkeeper's Daughter in the winter term, and, during Focus, our Arts Festival, the talents of some 150 students were featured in 11 creative and entertaining plays.

Debating also had a banner year, both in the number who participated and in the brilliant results of our best debaters. For the first time in several years we ran a full junior debating programme for novices in Grades 7, 8, and 9. These boys are our hope for the future. After a 2 year absence, the Headmaster's Cup returned to St. Andrew's when Robert Burke, Jed Dadson, Chris Foster, and Jonathan Hood defeated the Toronto French School, a traditional powerhouse in debating... Thanks to Mr. Ray and to Mr. Arril for the countless hours spent preparing our troops.

The student body, Mr. Smith and Mr. Giel deserve a great deal of credit for orchestrating three superb demonstrations of togetherness and discipline by our Cadet Corps: the Church Parade to St. Paul's, the Headmaster's Parade for the benefit of the pre-1945 Old Boys, and a notable Inspection on the 6th of May.

Incidentally, an SAC 100 Person Honour Guard and Band has been invited to participate in the Official Opening of the Fourth Session of the 35th Ontario Legislature - the date is unknown at this time.

In athletics, our representative teams at all levels, upheld the St. Andrew's tradition of good sportsmanship and fair play, while garnering their share of honours. Worthy of special mention, at the First Team level, was a sensational Basketball championship. The final game kept the cheering fans in suspense, and they were rewarded by last-second heroics. As a result, SAC conquered a highly skilled Upper Canada College team... Particular kudos to the Track and Field team which won the Conference of Independent Schools' title for a record sixth consecutive year, and to the Senior Nordic Ski team which also won the C.I.S.A.A. title... Congratulations are owed to the Under 14 hockey team which won the Maple Leaf Gardens annual tournament, to Under 16 volleyball, Under 15 soccer and Under 16 squash all of whom were victorious in their respective categories.

The year was not without its losses. Long time friends and supporters of the school Len Lumbers, Mike Sifton and Eleonor Rex passed away, as did Chris Richards, class of '94, a Tilston Award winner, and Donna Campbell, our Bursar's wife, for whom a fitting and well-attended memorial service was held in our Chapel. Recuperating from setbacks, and being the recipients of best wishes for a prompt and complete recovery, are our Physics teacher, Mr. Fred Hiltz, and our Dining Hall Manager, Mr. Mike Hillick.

This report doesn't do justice to many of the year's activities, but we should underline the initiatives of the Race Relations Committee headed by Mrs. Doreen Hiltz, the Social Awareness Programme under the auspices of the Ladies' Guild, and the generous support of our Parents and of the whole community in the HELP US HELP THE CHILDREN donation drive.

As my 14th year as Headmaster of St.Andrew's College comes to a close, I am ever filled with deep gratitude towards all the members of this community. Gratitude towards Peter Harris and our supportive and understanding Board of Governors: last November, Mr. Harris organized an evening for all the staff and their mates at the Barnes Exhibition. This event generated immense good will and enhanced the ever present spirit of community and mutual respect among all of us. As you know, a school's academic and extra-curricular programmes are only as strong as its major component, the teaching staff. Providing them with the proper setting, adequate resources, and a climate free from undue stress is the role of the Board and, through them, the Headmaster.

Continued gratitude towards our hard working and dedicated Ladies' Guild for their generosity to so many facets of school life, and to our Old Boys' Association for their constant encouragement and support. To Jim Herder, the Director of Development, for his innovative ideas and their implementation, his sense of tradition and his love of all things Andrean. Gratitude to all those who, though seldom praised, complement the efforts of the afore-mentioned. A special thanks to Doug Campbell, the assistant-Headmasters, Mr. Inglis and Mr. Smith, the housemasters, and those coaches and mentors who go that extra step for the boys in so many ways.

And now, finally to you, the subjects and objects of this distinctive occasion, the graduates of the class of 1995.

During your time at St. Andrew's most of you will have read Kurt Vonnegut's novel on the second World War, Slaughterhouse Five. At one point Billy Pilgrim, the central character, watches a movie about Americans bombing a German city. But Billy's sense of time is all mixed up, so that he sees the film backward. A German city is in flames; then the bombs rise upward, back into the bombers as the flames shrink. Then the American planes, loaded with corpses and wounded men shot by anti-aircraft fire, fly backward to land in Britain with all crews in good health. The bombs are sent back to America, where they are dismantled and their destructive ingredients are buried once again in the green earth.

The effect of seeing this backwards is to shock us with the magnitude of war's destruction, which could and ought to be reversed. In the year that marks the 50th anniversary of World War II, it seems appropriate to borrow from Vonnegut by conducting a brief backward scenario of two of your lives over the next 50 years.

To begin, the year is 2045. Tom and Jerry have both retired. Will you be like Tom who doesn't know what to do with his time since he received the golden handshake from his corporate position? He is at loose ends, plays solitaire, glues himself to the T.V. set and waits for his before- dinner martini. Tom is now the equivalent to the bombed German city in Slaughterhouse Five.

Or will you be like Jerry who has set himself up as a consultant for senior citizens who don't know how to cope with their problems? He has made new friends, read widely, learned new skills. He would enjoy rehashing the old days at St Andrew's with Tom, but hesitates because he fears that Tom might not think the old days were all that interesting.

The point to be drawn here is that Jerry's education both at St. Andrew's and since, has opened up a complete life for him, not merely a job, and unlike Tom, he has rich uses for friends and for leisure time.

Now, back to the year 2020. Tom and Jerry are at the peak of their careers. Tom is content putting in 8 hour days and satisfied with drawing his considerable pay cheque. Tom relies on the mass media for his information. All those stories about street crime, drugs, teenage sex, and business slumps have made him pessimistic and paranoid. He keeps saying "the young don't have any values any more."

Jerry, although successful in his profession, continues to educate himself by taking courses and reading literature pertaining to the history of his field and of society in general. He looks at the evils of the world and reflects on the terrorism of Tokyo and Oklahoma City which occurred in his senior year at SAC. But he has also read about humanity's unquenchable aspiration to rebuild and to reform. The world, for this man, will always offer some hope and optimism.

A second point can be drawn here: that to have an understanding of the past is to have a keener sense of the present. Otherwise, as George Santayana has warned, "those who ignore the past are condemned to repeat it". A good education should not only clarify the past but orient us in the issues of the present - health service, environment, race, sexism, the economy, and the impact of technology.

Backward again, now the year is 2005, ten years from now. Tom has been working diligently and competently in his firm but is passed over for promotion to management rank. He blames the changing composition of the firm, and the perceived advantages being given to women, visible minorities and persons with disabilities.

Jerry does not blame others for his problems. He confronts sexism, elitism and cultural superiority head on, even in the workplace. He realizes that drawing from the entire pool of talent will enable society to find complex solutions for the global challenges of the 21st century.

Now to the third and final point: change, led by technology, influenced by media, reflected in attitudes and actions, occurs in every facet of our lives. If we are to keep our options open for the future we must be receptive to change. We must embrace the wisdom and gifts of others and welcome the diversity which surrounds us. Somehow we must manage to attain the vast tolerance and insight represented by Edwin Markham when he wrote:

> He drew a circle to keep me out,
> Heretic, rebel, a thing to flout;
> But love and I had the wit to win -
> We drew a circle and took him in.

The backwards scenario is over. Tom and Jerry have illustrated three great hallmarks of the educated person:

1. Openness to a complete life (including its leisure);
2. Understanding of the past and how it helps us prepare for the issues of the present;
3. Tolerance and flexibility in our attitudes and actions.

Now we are back in this lovely front quad, June 9th 1995, with the memorial chapel reminding us of a past which has shaped our lives. I look with pride and optimism on this year's graduating class.

When you leave the front gates for the last time as a student of St. Andrew's, your own life-films will start forward. I hope you'll be able to follow the kind of scenario which all of us at this school want for you. We can't guarantee it, but we hope we have offered some input for the plot. So we wish you success in working it out, in finding a life-story of personal fulfilment and of power to participate fully in a free and tolerant society.

As they say in the theatre..... break a leg.

Stress, worry, work, fashion and fast food - these are words we encounter when thinking about cities. We have to worry about whether or not we are wearing the latest fashions or whether or not we are going to make the bus and we worry about all sorts of dates and deadlines. Life in the jungle is much less stressful. One is responsible for oneself and for no one else.

Take, for instance, the life of a small tree lizard in a Brazilian rainforest. He does not have to worry about school; he already knows all he needs to because of instinct. This lizard has no deadlines to meet or essays to write; his only responsibility is to keep himself alive and healthy. Of course, when it comes time to mate, he doesn't have to worry about flowers, chocolates and fine dining - both he and his future mate know exactly what they want. It is a clear cut ritual - none of this ring around the rosy that we humans seem too preoccupied with. Social life in the jungle is a breeze; you can't go wrong; you can't miss, there is no "till death we do part". If you wanted commitments, you could make them but you would not be obligated to remain faithful to one person. This gets rid of things like wife and child beating; if you got tired of the situation, you could just leave. There would be no pain of awkwardness for either party. It would be a much simpler, much more practical way of going about things.

In the jungle, of course, there are no computers, fancy cars or telephones. There are no status symbols. There is no currency, just the exchange of one favour for another. There is no high-tech medicine, but there are many natural cures that are available in the trees and flowers. There are no nuclear weapons or machine guns, leaving only sharpened sticks or weapons. It is less dangerous in the jungle that way . You can be left alone if you want to be. There is enough space for everybody. Of course, there wouldn't be condoms, either, but that would make both sexes more cautious. This would force them to develop long-term relationships instead of one-night stands. This, in turn, would lower the rate of violent crimes, because there would be fewer unfulfilled expectations. It would ultimately make people more responsible and accountable for their actions and would lead to a more mature society.

The type of lifestyle in the jungle has to be one of self-sufficiency because either you provide for yourself somehow or you starve. This is a contrast to the many unemployed or under employed people who feed off of the government,instead of working for a living. In the jungle, there is no excuse for laziness and if everybody has to occupy himself with work, there will be less time for less productive activities.

It was once said that civilization is a phase that mankind is going through. When society eventually breaks down because of its many complications we will revert to a simpler lifestyle. People will trade their mink coats for parkas and their Nike 'airs' for moccasins and will desert the cities and flock to the jungle in search of a simpler, more direct lifestyle.

Mankind has been around for hundreds of thousands of years and only in the past ten thousand have we taken to civilization. Already we are finding problems with it. Life in the jungle is tough, but life in today's society is tougher. At least life is simpler and more straight forward in the jungle. As Paul Carrack from the group "Mike and Mechanics" sings, "Give me the simple life; the plain and the simple."

When we finally get over the novelty of all our inventions and accomplishments we will ask ourselves: "Are we really better of than we were ten thousands years ago?" When one takes pollution and nuclear warfare into consideration, the answer will invariable be, "No".

So we will return to the jungle where life will be easier as we will be an older, wiser, and more experienced race. We belong in jungles, not in office buildings. Ashes to ashes and dust to dust. The period of great cities and technological advancement will return to the ground from whence it arose.

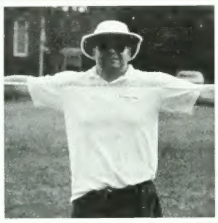
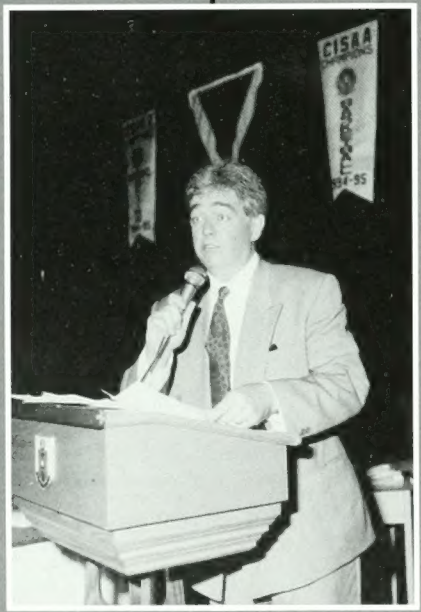
Mr. Hanson has created a new sport, one in which the object of the game is to bank as many pop cans off of his head and to ideally make them land in the garbage cans. However, this sport didn't catch on as much as Mr. Hanson had desired due to a shortage in bandages. Mr. Hanson is currently refining his skills and modifying the rules of the game hoping that next year the students will be a little less vicious. Party-on Mr. Hanson!



Once upon a time, Mr. Cameron went fishing and he was very successful. This time, he caught a sunfish this big. But as we all know Mr. Cameron and his capabilities in telling very 'interesting' stories, this sunfish was probably about size of a wheel on a skateboard. Perhaps, Mr. Cameron will get some time this summer to practice his fly-fishing on the Trois-Riveres in Quebec. Good luck, Sir!

Mrs. Kravchenko is trying to keep warm on one of those blistering Canada days. Things that have been eliminated from the picture are a number of students walking around in the background wearing only t-shirt and shorts. One thing that should be noted is that the jacket Mrs. Kravchenko is wearing is not hers. Just think of how cold the person who's missing their jacket is.

Mr. Kimmerer was found on many different occasions to be practicing for the 'let's make the biggest fool of ourselves' contest. No, we're just kidding Mr. Kimmerer. In fact, this picture was taken while he was humming a few lyrics of Neil Young's latest release. It's a little known fact that Neil Young is Mr. Kimmerer's favourite singer and will be touring with him this summer. Look for him coming to a backyard fence near you.



FACULTY

If we were to think of a few adjectives to describe our teaching staff at St. Andrew's College, the words intelligent, professional and top-notch come to mind. The word 'teacher' doesn't even come close to describing what these masters do on a regular basis in a day. St. Andrew's College is school whose doors are open twenty-four hours-a-day and the masters are intricately involved ensuring the smooth running of school life.

The masters of St. Andrew's College are much like bouncers at a dance club. They are there to enforce the ground rules, ensure that everybody has a good time, and most of all they're really cool, easy-going people.

Most students don't actually realize how important the teachers are until they have reached their final year at SAC. Simply stated, students in their final year begin to dream of the future to come without realizing that they must deal with the present first. This is where the masters assist the students enormously by ensuring that the graduating students don't stray from the straight and narrow line

It's extremely difficult to put into words exactly everything that the masters do because they are all encompassing; from coaching and refereeing on the sports field to organizing special events which occur on evenings and weekends to advising the students in the academic arena. However, there is a small secret that the teachers hold onto that the student body has always wondered:

Just exactly what happens during those Friday Staff Meetings? Why do all of the teachers have white powder, usually found on a jelly donuts, on their faces after those meetings?

Regardless, it is obvious that a school is made up of two things; students and teachers. Without the masters at St. Andrew's College, we could not be the successful school that we are today.

Everyone Has A Bad Day, Right!

The office staff is a large group of people including the Alumni Office, the library staff and the Bursar's Office. Just think about how boring school life would be without the laughter from Ms. Marsh and Mrs. Pilieci. Is it possible to not have the generosity of the bursar's office always ensuring that the borders always have pocket money so that they can enjoy their weekends.

The Alumni office ensures that money is raised to finance many of the activities at St. Andrew's College. In addition, they keep all of the grads in touch with one another even after they leave the school. Many people forget about the smaller people including Mr. Worling in the Archives found in the basement of Dunlap Hall, Mrs. Moffat-Lynch and Mr. Foy, who's special skills were demonstrated acting as staff advisor for the Perfect Council on a regular basis.

A special thanks should be extended to Mrs. Osmond who could be heard on a many occasions on the P.A. system while ensuring that all of the phone messages, faxes and parcels were delivered to the correct students. She accomplished all of this while keeping the school all organized. If there are any other staff members that were overlooked, our sincere regrets.

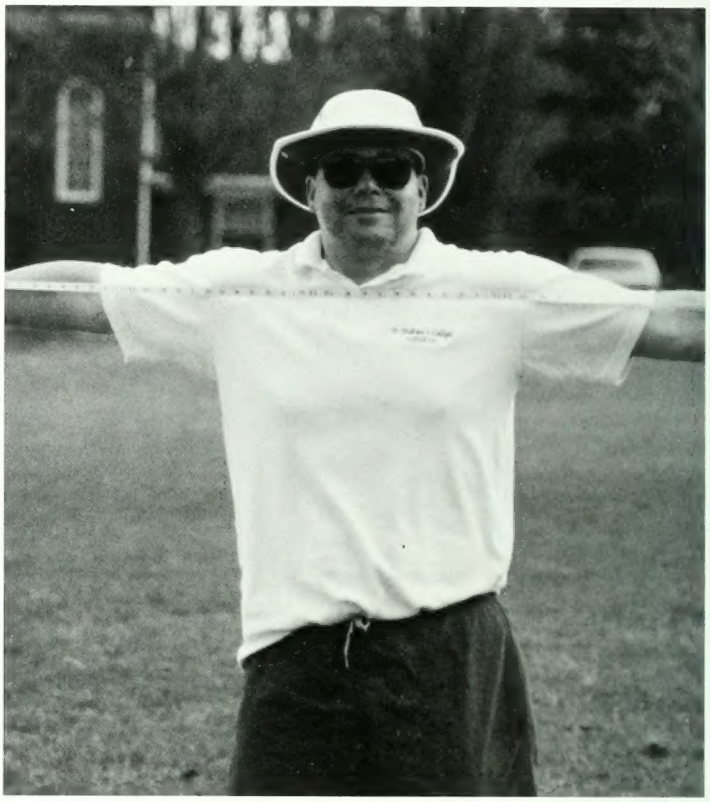
Mr. M. Cameron

We are delighted to heartily welcome Mr. Cameron and his family to St. Andrew's this year. Mr. Cameron left 'La Belle Province' and Bishops College School to take up the challenge of teaching French and bringing cultural enlightenment to the denizens of room C12 in the basement depths of our school's French department.

With good humour and enthusiasm, Mr. Cameron has added flair and fun to his teaching assignments and has delighted his students and all who have come to know him. In addition to his teaching assignments he quickly became an indispensable member of the 1st football coaching squad and shared his formidable coaching talents and his love of the game which have added immeasurably to our football program. The Spring season found him equally involved in our Sports program as he continued to devote many hours after classes to coaching our Rugby players.

Within just one year, Mr. Cameron has quickly become part of the heart and soul of the St. Andrew's community. His sense of fair play, his concern for students as a skilled teacher and coach, and his enthusiastic love of life have touched us one and all. Bienvenue Mr. Cameron.



Mlle. Natalie Chalvesche

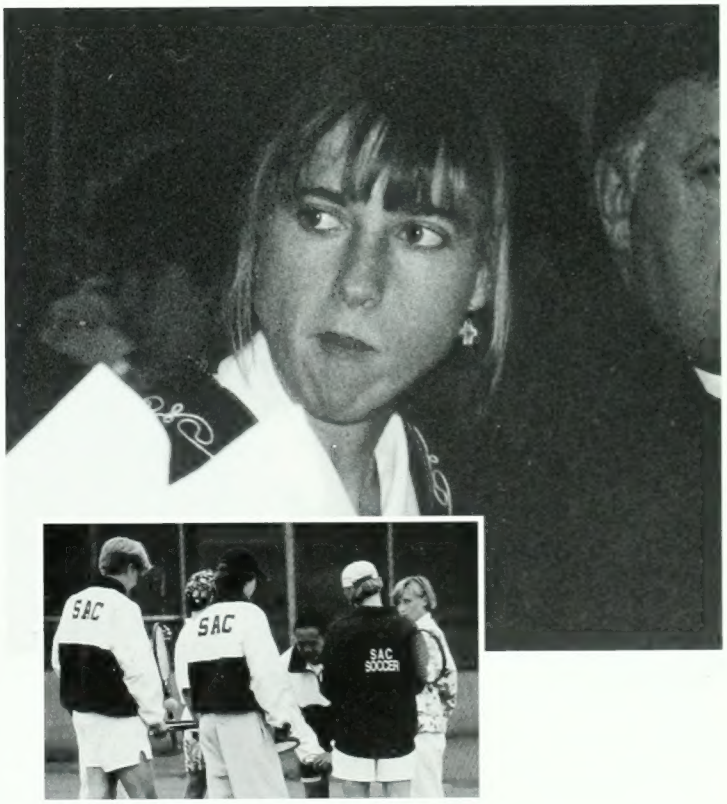
Mlle. Chalvesche joined the College for the 1994/95 school year in an exchange with Mr. Hemmings. She taught various levels of French and one section of Spanish. Mlle. Chalvesche was active in our sports program and while here got her SCUBA license and various lifesaving qualifications. We wish her all the best as she returns to France to continue her teaching career.

Mr. Graydon Robson

Mr. Robson has a B.A. and B.Ed. from the University of Windsor and is working on his M.A. This year he taught Grade 11 Economics and Grade 9 History. In Term 1 he was one of the coaches of 1st Football. Then it was on to Under 16 Basketball in Term 2, followed by 1st Lacrosse in Term 3. All in all a very busy and successful year for this welcome addition to the Andrean community.

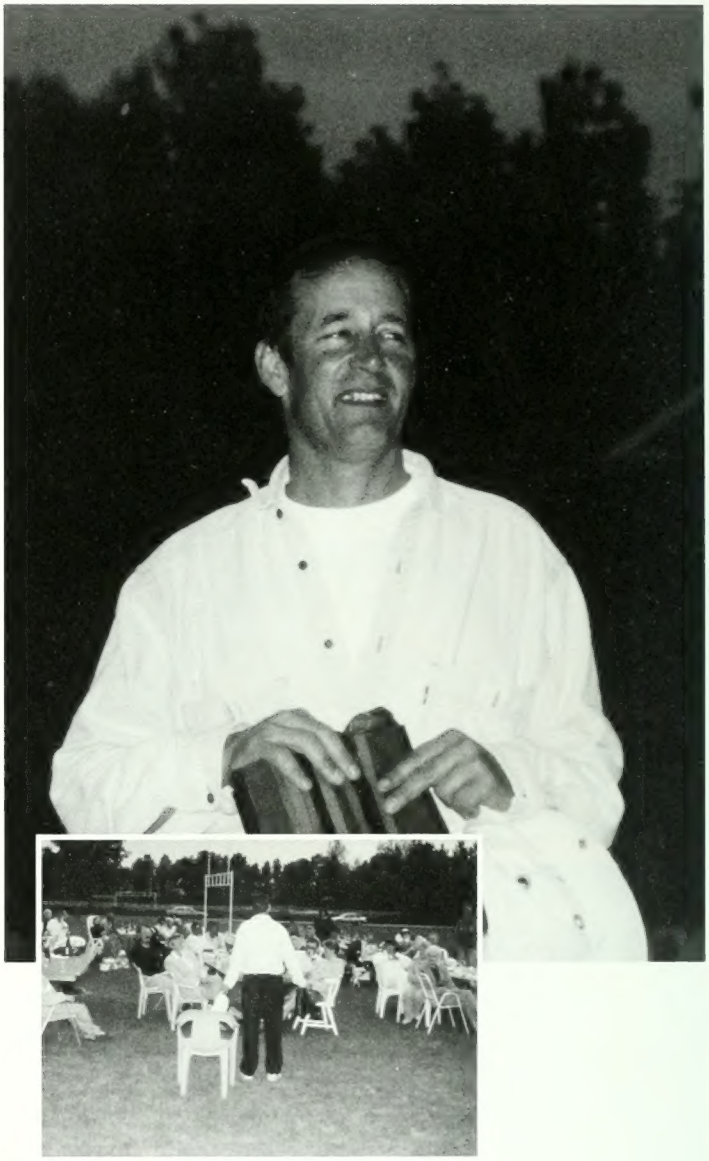
Ms. Jane Kravchenko

A native of Toronto, Ms. Kravchenko obtained her undergraduate degree at the University of South Carolina where she played intercollegiate tennis, and her B.Ed. at York where she was a member of the OWIAA championship tennis team. She taught Grade 8 English and Grade 7 French this year and lived to tell about it. Ms. Kravchenko was very active in the College sports program, coaching a different sport each term: Under 14 volleyball in Term 1, Under 15 basketball in Term 2, and 1st and 2nd Tennis in Term 3. The College is very pleased to welcome her.



Mr. Peter Robinson

The College bids farewell to one of its most colourful members, Peter Robinson, or Robo as he is better known. He came to the College in 1977 and quickly established himself as a very special member of the Andrean community - history teacher extraordinaire, coach of various sports including years when he seamlessly moved from Ist Soccer to Ist Squash to Ist Cricket, a character with character. As a teacher of History he made the subject come alive. His teaching methods were provocative, stimulating, and effective. Mr. Robinson made the jump from neo-Luddite to Hi-Techie Level I, one of the first to use computers as an adjunct to the classroom. Andreans old and young enjoy playing Robonian Baseball on the SAC Network, ostensibly a game but in reality a new way of learning History. He is immensely articulate and sitting through one of his classes is equivalent to spending an hour working through one of the exercises in "Words Are Important". Our best wishes go with him, a Schoolmaster in the finest sense of the term.



Patricia Ham

English literature, hardly surprising I suppose, tells us little about matrons. Shakespeare, in Romeo and Juliet describes "civil night as a sober-suited Matron all in black." Contrariwise, Bishop Heber in a well-known hymn speaks of "A noble army, men and boys, the Matron and the maid/Around the Saviour's throne rejoice in robes of light arrayed." But the modern matron is not arrayed in either dark or white costume. Nor is it any longer her function, as in Goldsmith's Deserted Village, to reprove "the bashful virgin's sidelong looks of love." Hers is a more utilitarian, yet essential, task: to look after the welfare of the society - its health, its social needs - to which she belongs. She is and has long been an essential maintenance engineer in the School's engine room which enables it to function effectively, efficiently and happily. Patricia Ham, who took up residence as School matron in 1977, responded energetically to the charge, overseeing and improving everything. Her range was tremendous, and with her keen eye for detail - from the tile out of place to the schoolboy out of sorts - she has contributed as much to the College as anyone ever has.

The invitation to become matron of St. Andrew's College was "one", as Patricia once put it to me, "of the greatest pieces of good fortune in my life", and there can, I think, be little doubt that in this life of happy service, she drew strength from being part of the Andrean community. For Patricia, St. Andrew's was in some sense a sanctuary where she found exactly the right place for the blossoming of her talents.

She took her College duties seriously and, though she may have found her position not entirely without its problems, what underpinned her success as matron was her instinctive love and respect for the College and its traditions and her unfussy but highly effective methods of getting things done.

But what makes ultimately for the happiness of a community like ours is less efficient administration, desirable as this is, than the spirit which moves the waters, and gives life to the whole. And this is where Patricia really shone. On coming to St. Andrew's, the Linen Room became a centre of hospitality. Patricia's main interest was in people and she was an immediate success with the boys. She had a capacity to identify with the young in such a way as to sympathize with their objectives and to genuinely enjoy their company. She was indulgent towards their frailties, showing on many occasions a readiness to excuse defaulters towards whom some of the masters were less likely to be tolerant. In some few instances this sympathy went much further, so where young men had got themselves into serious scrapes it was the matron's confidential understanding that was crucial to their mental and physical recovery.

Patricia is one of the world's great enthusiasts and there was no College society which she did not support, many actively, the rest by encouragement. If anything got her seal of approval, then it got total dedication, and more importantly, anyone Patricia met who had a similar interest became a friend, an ally. Luckily, for me, one of her great loves is the theatre. She has been so much a part of the dramatic life at St. Andrew's, especially in the costume department (but no task, however humble, was ever too much trouble for Patricia), that it will be difficult to imagine mounting a production at the School without her.

Patricia Ham's retirement as matron of St. Andrew's College breaks a link with the past. Her robust, compact figure, clipboard in hand, striding purposefully through the front quad or down the corridors of the boarding houses, has become part of our geography - and she will be much missed. But we have every hope that retirement to the old schoolhouse near Blyth, which she has lovingly restored and redesigned, will give Patricia many happy years to follow up the wide-ranging interests which lay claim upon her time and talents.
